Emanuel Church Yields Up Another Victim.

Remains of the Missing Blanche Lamont are Found.

Steeple-Minnie Williams Knew Durant Arrested.

Associated Press Leased-wire Service.
SAN FRANCISCO, April 14.—The Emanuel Baptist Church, on Bartlet street, between Twenty-second and Twenty third streets, in this city, has been the scene of two of the most atrocious murders ever committed in the State. Yester day the mutilated and murdered body of Minnie Williams was found in the library of the edifice. Today the dead and nude of the edifice. Today the dead and nude body of Blanche Lamont was found in the tower of the same church. The same hand, the authorities believe, slew both girls, and W. H. T. Both were 21 years old, brunettes, and pretty and modest girls from a young medical student named W. H. T. On April 3 Miss Lamont disappeared. On April 3 Miss Lamont disappeared.
Diligent search failed to reveal any trace of her whereabouts, and her aunt, Mrs.
Noble, with whom she had been living, was totally unable to throw any light on the affair. Miss Lamont came from Dillon, Mont., several months ago, having been sent to San Francisco for her health and at the same time to strand the North and at the same time to attend the Normal School to perfect herself as a teacher. The last person seen in her company was W. H. T. Durant, a young medical student, who, it appears, had been on friendly terms with the missing girl. Two witnesses state that they saw young man and a young woman enter the church, the former answering the de-scription of Durant and the latter that of Minale Williams. Following this clew, the Minnie Williams. Following this clew, the police at once put the residence of Durant under surveillance. that it is now necessary to go back to the Lamont case. Yesterday Mrs. Noble, the aunt of Miss Lamont, received through the mails a paper containing the three rings worn by her niece the night she disappeared. On the paper were written the name and address of Theodore Du-This, together with the fact Miss Williams, an intimate friend of Miss Lamont, had been heard to say that she knew Blanche had been murdered, but had refused to tell what she knew, led the police to expect that the same man who killed Miss Williams had slain Miss Lamont, and that, learning that Miss Williams knew of his first crime, he had attempted further concealment by com-mitting a second murder. Late last night the detectives had about decided that Durant had murdered Miss Williams, and his theory was further strengthened this morning when, on making a thorough search of Emanuel Church, the dead and outraged body of Miss Lamont was found concealed in the steeple. Death had been caused by strangulation. The body was lying just inside the door

The body was lying just inside the door of the tower-room, naked and on the floor. Around the neck there were a few streaks, the marks of fingers that had been pressed deep into the tender flesh. The mouth was open, showing the regular teeth, the features were badly distorted, being drawn down at one corner, and the lips were swollen and bloodstained. The nose was the only feature that retained its original shape, for the cheeks were bloated. The girl's brown hair was matted with dirt and hung loosely about ense crowds surrounded the church, and had to be kept back by the police. The Chief of Police sent for Rev. Dr. Gibson, pastor of the church, and the report be-came current that he had been accused of the crimes and had been arrested. Then the crowds surged to Dr. Gibson's ouse, and the excitement grew more in tense. It soon spread all over the city. Extra papers were gotten out, and thousands of people flocked to the scene from all over the city. The rumor of the arrest was later dealed, and it became known that Dr. Gibson and the sexton of known that Dr. Gibson and the sexton of the church had been merely called before the police to tell what they knew. At 5 o'clock came the news that Durant had been arrested at Walnut Creek on the road to Mt. Diablo. He was caught by Detective Anthony, who left in pursuit of him early this morning. The detective and his prisoner left on the train for San Sanatica where they arrived this even Francisco, where they arrived this even-ing. Another immense crowd had gath-ered at the ferries to see the suspected murderer come in, but a detachment of police was in waiting, and they kept the crowd back. They claim to have two vitnesses who saw Durant and Miss Will-ams in company last Friday night, and leo state that, when a search was made f Durant's house today, in the pocket f his coat was found a purse which Miss Williams is known to have carried Frilay night. Durant is about 23 years old and was born and rated in the neighborhood in which the nurder occurred. It is a graduate of the Cogswell High school, and has been studying medicine or a year. He is a member of the Secnd Brigade Signal Corps, and was assist-nt superintendent of Emanuel Church Sun-lay-school. He was always of a quiet disn spite of the evidence, that he com-nitted the crime attributed to him. The police, however, think that Durant is anher Jack-the-Ripper, with a mania for

They state that it is highly probable hat Durant is reponsible for the killing f Eugene Ware, a young drug clerk who was found stabbed to death several months go in the store where he worked. No race was ever found of the assassin, and and the fiendish cruelty of it, Ware having and the hendish crueity of it, Ware having been stabbed in eighteen places, leads to he belief that it was the work of an in-ane person. Durant's parents are highly esteemed in the district in which they live. His father is chief engineer in Buckngham & Hecht's large shoe factory, and, while not rich, has been able to give his children a good education and start in

They were in uniform and had been on a signaling expedition. When Durant was placed under arrest his comrades at fire wanted to resist the officer, but finally allowed him to be taken to Walnut Creek where the officer and his prisoner boarded a train for San Francisco, When they arrived at the prison, Durant, in his regi-mentals, was taken to the Chief's office and subjected to a searching examination He appeared very cool and even when armont's body had been found, did not lose his nerve, although he appeared greatly shocked and surprised. After the exami-nation by the Chief, Durant was taken to a cell where he was joined by his parent and a lawyer. He made the following statement to the Associated Press:

"The last time I met Miss Lamont was on the morning of the day she disappeared.

April 3. We talked about books and I promised to bring a book for her to prayer-meeting that night. Miss Lamont did not appear at prayer-meeting and on the following Friday I took the book to her house and gave it to her sister. The latter told me that Blanche had gone to school, evidently trying to keep the fact of her disappearance secret. That is all I know of the Lamont case. The last time I saw Minnie Williams was three weeks ago."
When confronted by the evidence that

Miss Williams's purse had been found in his pocket, Durant gave the following ex-planation: "I was going home from the meeting at Dr. Vogel's Friday night when my foot struck a small object on the sidewalk. I picked it up and found that it was a small pocket mirror. Near by was a purse which I also picked up and but in my pocket. I took both purse and mirror home with me, intending to tell my parents of my find. It was late, however, and I went right to bed. In the

The police take exception to Durant's statement that he had not seen Miss Williams for three weeks. They say that they can prove that he was with her on Monday and Tuesday, and possibly later. From all appearances Miss Lamont was not murdered in the room where her body was found. The body had been dragged was found. The body had been dragged up the belfry stairs and into the towerroom. Her clothing was found stuffed into various corners of the room. About the time this morning that Miss Lamont's body was found the congregation of Emanuel Church were on their way to attend for Easter services, for which elaborate preparations had been made. When the preparations had been made. When they arrived, however, and learned of the frightful crime, they fied horror-stricken from the spot. The church was locked and guarded by the police all day.

In his statement to the police, Rev. Dr. Gibson asserts his belief in Durant's innocence, but is unable to offer any theory as to the actual perpetrator of the crimes as to the actual perpetrator of the crimes. nocence, but is unable to offer any theory as to the actual perpetrator of the crimes. This much can be said for Durant, he did not act like a guilty man when arrested and his preparations to leave with the Signal Corps were made without conceal-ment and before the murder of Miss Will-Even the police are forced to admit that it seems incredible that he would commit such a crime unless afficted by a manla for that sort of work. No charge has been placed against Durant. Chief Crowley, in speaking of the case tonight, after detailing the circumstances of Miss Williams's disappearance on last Friday night, and the fact that a person answering Durant's appearance had been seen entering the church with a woman who answers Miss Williams's description,

"Durant made his appearance at Dr. Vogel's house at about 9:30 or 10 p.m., remaining there until about 11:30 o'clock. Dr. Vogel states that at the time Durant arrived at his house he noticed that Du-rant was somewhat exercised and that great beads of perspiration came from his forehead. His hair was disheveled and he asked Dr. Vogel's permission to wash his hands and comb his hair before he made his appearance where the young and consequently his hands were soiled. He afterwards came downstairs after washing his hands and combing his hair and during the evening read a letter pur-porting to come from his sister in Ger-many, and, after reading the letter he seemed more composed. "About a month ago, I am informed,

Durant accompanied a young lady from church, and during the conversation which ensued, he asked the young lady if she was not suffering from some female complaint, and suggested to her that he complaint, and suggested to her that he agreed to take the medicine which he gave her, and that it did benefit her. On a later occasion, one afternoon after church, Durant asked her if she had ever been examined. She was somewhat surprised at his question and answered no. Durant at his question and answered no. Durant then said that she ought to be and that he could do it. She told him she did not desire to be examined; that her folks would attend to that. He then told her that there was no feer of detection, and he there was no tear of detection, and ne proposed that he knew of a good place in the church where no one would find it out. She was very much surprised at his offer, which she indignantly repulsed.

"When Durant left Dr. Vogel's real-dence at about 11:30 o'clock, he left there dence at about 11:30 o'clock, he left there in company with a young man named Wolf and a number of young ladies. They walked from Vogel's house to Twenty-fourth and Howard streets, when the parties separated and Durant continued west on Twenty-fourth street. At about 12:15, a.m. Wolf went to his stable and saddled his horse, and, crossing the corner of Twenty-fourth and Bartlett streets, he noticed Durant standing on that corner. When the above facts were made known to me I detailed Detective Seymour to Tamalpals, understanding that Durant was to go there, and Detective Anthony Tamalpais, understanding that Durant was to go there, and Detective Anthony to Mt. Diablo. I was informed that Durant might be at either place.

"I also came to the conclusion that the person who murdered Miss Williams was the same person who had something to do with the disappearance of Miss Lamont. I kept: these facts to myself, and only addised the detectives who were working on the case of my suspicions. I told them that I thought that Miss Lamont would also be found in that church. The Raymond Hotel was totally destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon Where yesterday morning there stood the huge and famous caravansary, upon at matchless scenic beauty, a landmark great and imposing, always in sight within a radius of many miles, there now remain embers, in the midst of which rise three brick chimneys like monuments to mark the place of departed glory. The pass ing of this conspicuous house, that has been so closely identified with the prog-ress of Southern California, was witnessed by thousands of people, the most sordid of whom regretted the destruction as personal loss, for nearly all felt more the disinterested concern in the big hotel on the hill.

BEGINNING OF THE FIRE. The cause of this unexpected and de plorable destruction is wholly conjectural. At 3:28 p.m. by the hotel office clock a small boy dressed in bicyclists' sweater ran into the hotel office and said to some one at the desk, "Say, mister, your hotel is on fire." Thinking the lad was fooling, the clerks chaffed him, but he only reiterated the assertion with so much sin cerity as to induce an attache of the house to run upstairs to investigate. When the news was verified there was a great stimulation of energies of all concerned. Gen. Wentworth, the manager, accompanied by the house employees, ran to the spot and Wentworth, the manager, accompanied by the house employees, ran to the spot and threw upon the struggling blaze a number of hand grenade fire-extinguishers which availed nothing. Then a general alarm was spread through the house and outside the building with all the per-sonal belongings they could carry in their

There were not many guests within d to their rooms to recover personal property. A few of these venturesome ones narrowly escaped with their lives, the experiences of some being thrilling in the were lost.

FIGHTING THE FIRE

In the meantime, and, in fact, before the dwellers in the hotel knew anything of the impending danger, the flame which had broken through the roof at the south-east corner of the building was espled from various points in Pasadena, and the alarm was turned in from two widely-distant was turned in from two widely-distants boxes thus confusing, to some extent, the efforts of the fire department to reach the scene. A fierce wind, the most severe of the scene, as blowing at the time, as it did all day, directly from the southwest, which delivered up the whole of the massive building as food for the flame, which, from its incipiency, soon envel-oped one entire eide of the mansard roof and penetrated far into the attic floo

When the fire-fighters and apport Pasadena arrived on the hill, one side of the building was a sheet of seeth ng flame, so hot that the spectators and workers were kept hundreds of feet away from the windward side, while to venture anywhere near the leeward would be to invite a singeing of hair and clothing.

A HOPELESS TASK.

The hotel had its own fire department, frequently drilled, and supplied with needful apparatus, but at this critical time the men were absent and the hose was useless. The Pasadena fire engine, first brought to the top of the hill and then taken down to the base, when it was found that there was not enough water to be had at the summit, and it was worked to its full power to send a volume worked to its full power to eand a volume of water through the hose to the burn-ing building, but all in vain. The water ing building, but all in vain. The water supply was not adequate to the accomplishment of anything in combating the flames and soon the efforts of the firement were directed to the saving of some dotached outbuildings, the electric light plant, boiler house and bowling alley, but of all the wooden structures that yesterday surmounted the hill, only the last two named insignificant houses and a little cottage west of the main building remain.

When it was seen that the big ing was doomed, Gen. Wentworth the firemen to save the new electric plant, but efforts were useless, for Throughout this there was great con-don among guests and employees of the use. The latter all had rooms on the per floor, and few of them succeeded aving their clothing and other chattels. Of the men some actions heroic and some peculiarly ludicrous are to be recorded; how one party carried out a grand plano, along with another squad escorting a box of canned tomatoes; two men excitedly lugging out of the laundry a pair of galvanized fron tubs, and another rushing out with three bettlers of anothers water in vanized fron tubs, and another rushing out with three bottles of Apollinaris water in his arms. The trunks and assorted lots of clothing were tossed down the hillsides, to be later gathered up by express wagons. CHICAGO, April 14.—James Wilmot Scott was born in Walworth county. Wis., in June, 1849. When a boy his parents removed to Galena, Ill., where they both romained until they died. The elder Scott was for many years postmaster of Galena, having been appointed by Grant. James W. Scott passed through the public schools of Galena and was sent to Beliot. (Wis.,) College, where he spent two years in the academic course. Leaving college he went for a short time to New York city, where he engaged in business, but occasionally contributed to the press. Wallethus employed he secured an appointment in the Government Printing Office in Washington. In 1872 he left he capital and started a small weekly paper in Prince George county, Md.

Not finding the filed broad enough, the young man returned to the West, and at his father's home, Galena, started a weekly paper called the Press. One year later he left his venture and came to Chicago. His first undertaking in this city was to start: a trade daily, called the National Hotel Reporter. In this publication, which has since grown to be of considerable importance, Mr. Scott retained an interest until his death. After several attempts to convert the Hotel Reporter into a general newspaper, Mr. Scott surrenderd the management to his partner, and joined a humber of other young men in founding the Chicago Herald in 1881. Two of Mr. Scott's associates were David Henderson, the well-known theatrical manager, and Will-D. Eaton.

In 1891 most of Mr. Scott's associates left the company to make way for John R. Walsh, who had acquired a controlling interest. Mr. Scott and Walsh of the Herald forms a struggling sheet to a large and influential newspaper. Mr. Scott with the Herald and the Evening Post.

SIOUX CITY (Iowa,) April 14.—Great excitement has been caused here by the belief abong property-holders that the titles to all the property in the business part of the city are defective. According to the records, the original plat is cituated on section 16, while in reality that part of town is in section 18. All the descriptions in the deeds of the property are consequently worthless.

The trouble is further complicated by the failure of Henry Aldren, the founder of the town, to sign the plat, and the omission of the surveyor who laid out the place to survey it to correspond with the government survey. There is talk of an effort by the original owners to force all the present occupants of the property to vacate. An interesting litigation is in prospect. SIOUX CITY (Iowa,) April 14.-Grea

The Post, editorhally, commenting on the Anglo-Venezuelan boundary trouble, says that it is difficult to see how America can intervene in the dispute, as great Britain has not invited her to arbitrate. Moreover, arbitration is impossible until it is arranged which question shall be left to arbitrators. Great Britain is willing to take up the matter where it was left in 1841, when the survey was made, and, after egresing to a boundary which cannot be disputed by either side, to submit the remaining territory to arbitration. The Poet says that it may interest Senator Morgan to know that the gold-field district is not included in the territory covered by the former survey.

But that Missouri farming community does not know the entire history of the wealthy and apparently exemplary Mr. Patrick. Before settling in Missouri he was George Patrick and he was indicted in Denver for murder committed by him and L. P. Griswold has been doed since February 24, 1872, and Patrick is coming back to Denver on his own volition to face a probable trial for 'he murder of James O'Neil, an innocent man, whem he and Griswold murdered late on the night of July 10, 1870, at Brown's bridge, four miles south of this city.

Both were indicted by the grand jury sitting in Denver. Griswold was killed when attempting to break jall. Patrick fied the State and was not heard of again by the Denver police authorities until a few nights ago, when he sent word to Gen. David J. Cook, assistant chief of the detective department, that he was tired of an outlaw's life and would come back to stand trial, if assured of protection aga but mob violence and a fair show in the courts. He was promised all he asked and a letter was received by Gen. Cook last night signed by Patrick's father-in-law, saying he will be in Denver this west.

Gen. Cook says there were extenuating circumstances connected with the part Patrick played in O'nell's death, as he was the tool of Griswold and was only a secondary character in the plot of the lynching. Patrick clasims that Griswold led him to believe that O'Nell was a firebug and, after securing a warrant for him, toey hanged him and then reported that he had been taken from them by a mob and lynched.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—The following is the text of President Cleveland's the Chicago committee:

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
WASHINGTON, April 13, 1895.
Gentlemen: I am much gastified by the exceedingly kind and complimentary invitation you have tendered me on behalf of many citizens of Chicago to be their guest at a gathering in the interest of sound money and wholesome financial doctrine. My attachment to this cause is so great and I know so well the hospitality

trine. My attachment to this cause is so great and I know so well the hospitality and kindness of the people of Chicago that my personal inclination is strongly in favor of accepting your flattering invitation, but my judgment and my estimate of the proprieties of my official place chige me to forego the enjoyment of participating in the occasion you contemplate.

I hope, however, that the event will mark the beginning of an earnest and aggressive effort to disseminate among the people safe and prudent financial ideas. Nothing more important can engage the attention of particitic citizens, because nothing is so vital to the welfare of our fellow-countrymen and to the strength, prosperity and honor of our nation. The situation confrontingus demands that those who appreciate the importance of this subject, and those who ought to be the first to see impending danger, should no longer remain indifferent or over-confident.

If the sound-money sentiment abroad it he lad is to save us from mischief and disaster, it must be crystallized and combined and made immediately active. It is dangerous to overlook the fact that a vast number in our present opportunity thus far, to examine the question in all its aspects, have nevertheless been ingeniously pressed with suggestions which, in this time of misfortune and depression, find willing listeners prepared to give credence to my scheme which is plausibly presented as a remedy for their unfortunate condition.

What is now needed more than anything to any scheme which is plausibly presented as a remedy for their unfortunate condition.

What is now needed more than anything else is a plain and simple presentation of the argument in favor of sound money. In other words, it is a time for the American people to reason together as members of a great nation which can promise them a continuance of protection and safety only so long as its solvency is unsuspected, its honor unsullied and the soundness of its money unquestioned. These things are ill-exchanged for the illusions of a debased currency and groundless hope of advantages to be sained by a disregard of our financial credit and commercial standing among the nations of the world. If our people were isolated from all others, and if the question of our currency could be treated without regard to our relations to other opintries, its character would be a matter of comparatively little importance. If the American people were only concerned in the maintenance of their precious life among themselves, they might return to the old days of barter and in this primitive manner acquire from each other the materials to supply the wants of their existence. But if American civilization were satisfied with this it would undoubtedly fail in its high and noble mission.

In these restless days the farmer is sion.
In these restless days the farmer is in these restless days the farmer is tempted by the assurance that, though our currency may be debased, redundant and uncertain, such a situation will improve the price of his products. Let us remind him that he must buy as well as sell: that his dreams of plenty are shaded by the certainty that if the price of things he has to sell is nominally enhanced, the cost of things he must buy will not remain stationary; that the best prices which cheap money proclaims are unsubstantial and elusive, and that even if they were real and palpable he must necessarily be left far behind in the race for their enjoyment. It ought not to be difficult to convince the wage-earner that it would reach him least of all and last of all. In an unhealthy stimulation of prices, an increased cost of all the needs of his home must belong to his portion, while he is at the same time vexed with vanishing visions of increased wages and an easier lot. The pages of history and experience are full of this lesson. An insidious attempt is made to create a preducice against the advocates of a safe and sound currency by the insinuation, more or less directly made, that they belong to financial and business classes and are, therefore, not only out of sympathy with the common people of the land, but for selfish and wicked purposes are willing to sacrifice the interests of those outside their circle. I believe that capital and wealth, through combination and other means, sometimes gain an undue advantage; and it must be conceded that the maintenance of a sound currency may, in a sense, be invested with a greater or less importance to individuals according to their condition and circounstances. It is, however, only a difference in degree, since it is utterly impossible that any one in our broad land, rich or poor, whatever may be his occupation or whether dwelling in a center of finance and commore, or in a remote corpor of our domain, can be really benefited by a financial scheme, not alike beneficial to all our people, or that tany one should be exc

In an interview tonight Robbins said:
"While the business men who extend this invitation hoped for a favorable response, they fully realized the difficulties in the way of the President's acceptance. His inability te overcome these and come to Chicago will be deeply regretted by them, as the ovation which would have been accorded to him here would have given a great impetus to the honest money sentiment throughout the West. Still his letter will have almost as wide an influence, as it speaks on this topic with his usual courage and directness."

CLEVELAND (O.,) April 14. — Aetna Lodge No. 13, of the National Union of Iron and Steel-workers, at a meeting last night, surrendered its charter and at once reorganized as a lodge of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel-workers. Mashington, April 14.—The determination of the appellants in the income-tax case to secure a rehearing before a full bench of the United States Supreme Court on the points on which the court divided, has caused a renewal of interest in the question of Justice Jackson's health and the possibility of his return to the bench at an early day. Late advices from Judge Jackson's home at Nashville are that he is constantly improving, and that, barring a very annoying cough, his physical condition is fairly good. It is also stated from the same source that he expects to be able to resume his duties as member of the court at the beginning of the October term. There remains little more than a month of the present term and it is not suggested that he may return for this brief period.

In view of this fact, there can be no possibility of another argument in the case before next fall or winter. This is equally true if Justice Jackson should decide to retire permanently from the bench which, it is understood, he has no thought of doing. In that contingency, however, the bench could not be filled before the sessembling of Congress. No firstance is known where a man nominated for the Suppeme bench has taken his seat before he was confirmed by the Senite. Congress will not convene until next. December and under no circumstances would the Senate be likely to pass upon a confirmation of this magnitude after the Christmas holidays. Action might, indeed, be postponed much longer and it possibly would be if the predilections of the nominee should be opposed to the income tax, as the Senate is committed to the law. It is also suggested that a justice who had not participated in the first hearing might feel a delicacy in sitting when the case was under consideration the second time.

It is quite possible that the petition for a rehearing may not be granted. The court's rule of procedure in such cases is only to grant such petition upon the request of a member of the court who has voted in opposition to the wishes of the petitioner. Sen titioner. Senator Chandler of New Hampshire was asked for his opinion as to the suggestion of Assistant Attorney-General Whitney that the Constitution might be so amended as to provide for the imposition of direct taxes, and replied:

"To amend the Constitution it is necessary to secure a two-chirds vote of Congress and then to have the amendment ratified by the State legislatures. I think it would be impracticable to do that. There never have been any amendments to the Constitution except of a negative character; none providing for modes of government, and with the increasing members in both houses of Congress and the growth of the United States, it becomes more and more difficult to secure a change. more and more difficult to secure a change. Furthermore I do not think an amendment of the Constitution is needed to secure a valid income-tax law. It can be had by apportioning the tax among the States in proportion to population and I am inclined to think that since the decision of the Supreme Court there will be an effort in that direction at the next session."

The Loicester correspondent of the Daily News says that a serious feature of the strike of the bootmakers is the rapid growth of American competition in the trade. He was at times so filled with emotion that his eyes filled with tears—a circumstance he probably would have attributed to the heat and smoke. He asked for paper and forthwith wrote and dispatched a telegram of information to the owner of the hotel, reading:

"Walter Raymond, No. 490 Bracon street, Boston—Dear old Raymond is burned to the ground. No one injured, and, I think guests have saved majority of their personal effects.

There were numerous offers of assistance from all quarters, Col. Green tendered whatever aid he could give, a message came from the Redondo Hotel offering assistance and General Manager Burnett ran a special to Raymond to bring guests and baggage to this city if desired. These proffers were appreciated but not accepted. The regular guests went to the Hotel Green and the baggage was stored in the annex, a building on Columbia street, owned by the hotel proprietor.

LOSS AND INSURANCE.

Gen. Wentworth said, in reply to inquiries, that the hotel cost $450,000 to build at a time when everything was high in price, and that the insurance upon the building and contents was $200,500, divided among forty or fifty companies, through agencies at Los Angeles. San Francisco and Boston, in which latter city most of the insurance was written. The house was newly furnished throughout just before the opening of the present season, and its appointments were luxurious in every respect. Of course no portion of the insurance applies to the losses sustained by guests and employees of the house, which was considerable to some of them. Some guests report the loss of trunks full of clothing, purses of money and jewelry, and the hired help lost clothes and money. In the case of them bad their savings in the office safe, which may field up its treasures intact—especially the coin. Through all the trying ordeal the hired help, and especially the maids and waiters, displayed unusual courage and fortitude, some of them risking their lives to save property belonging to their commades who chanced to be absent from the stirring cents.

While he was thus busily engaged there were numbers of other guests of the hotel who were so alarmed and excited that, fearing to make any effort to enter their rooms, lost everything belonging to them in the hotel. Mr. Kerens had been staying in his private car, but a few days ago took rooms at the Raymond. One of the guests of the hotel, intent upon saving property, carefully carried a cane-seated chair from which the back had been entirely burned, to a distance of several hundry yards and carefully deposited it in a safe place.

F. W. Bean, the cashler of the hotel, worked nobly to rescue the property of others, and lost all of his own clothing and effects and those of his wife. He was busily engaged in the work of rescue, when he was surrounded by the flames upon all sides. He was in the second story when he was caught and escape by the stairways was cut off. He jumped to the roof of the varanda and thence to the ground, excap-ing without other injury than that which may arise from the inhaling of smoke.

CAUSE OF THE FIRE. As above stated, the cause of the fire not known. Gen. Wentworth charges to a defective flue and a grate, it being a not known. Gen. Wentworth charges to a defective flue and a grate, it being known that the flame started near a chimney. Some one, said to be an attache of the house, said that a woman had dropped a coil-oil lamp with which she was heating a curling iron, and still another story is that a beliboy dropped a lighted lamp in the attic. The exact origin may never be known, but any one of these three can be accepted as offering a solution. Whatever may have been the start, it could not have happened at a more opportune time for the utter destruction of the building and the safety of guests. The manager of the house stated that 165 guests slept in the hotel Saturday night, and of these something over one hundred were members of the Car Accountants' Association, bound for their convention at San Francisco. The majority of these were on sight-seeing tours when the fire broke out, but companions who were present looked after the interests of the absent ones so well that only two sustained any personal loss, though one mourns for $500 in paper money and another all his hand baggage. The heavier baggage of these visitors was kept in the epocial train which bore them bither, and which stood at the time on the siding below the hill at the station. At the appointed time all the accountants left the scene of the fire, coming to Los Angeles and proceeding northward.

stuff. The few peace officers present could not watch the spacious grounds, and could not always tell whether the bearer of an armful of goods was an honest man or at thief. Some of the latter class were spotted, however, and may yet be given an opportunity to tell where they put certain things for safe-keeping. Some of these gentry will feel foolish when they learn that the supposed solid silver goods they lugged away was only plated ware. It may not seem fair to include them under this head, but a number of women scrambled for the possession of forks and spoons to carry away as souvenirs.

One man found $50 in money and a gold watch in one of the rooms, and turned it over to the authorities.

Some beer and wine, carried from the storercom, was the object of solicitous attention upon the part of several onlookers, and when they got through their "attention" not even the bottles were left.

AS SEEN FROM THE MOUNTAIN.

W. Wincup of the Los Angeles Terminal Railway and friends took lunch at the Raymond and then went to Eche Mountain, where, as they sat on the hotel veraxida Mr. Wincup was the first to see the smoke issuing from the top of the left wing. As soon as it was known that the great house was on fire there was a stamped for the observatory, where many guests of the mountain hotel looked through the smaller glasses at the progress of the flames. It was a grand sight. Prof. Lowe dispatched Manager Warner and the four-horse coach to the scene and made arrangements with the Terminal Railway to have a special train for those who wished to go to the Echo Mountain House. Several guests of the Raymond were upon the mountain during the day, and a few had just returned to the hotel when the alarm was given, so that they saved but little. AS SEEN FROM THE MOUNTAIN.

Mrs. Bean, who was postmistress at the hotel was very much distressed at the prospect of the destruction of all the records of her office, but Capt. Blake went into the smoke and brought out the books and valuables, much to the relief of the postmistress.

The engineer was overcome with smoke in making an investigation of the attle, when the alarm was first given, and was attended by the house physician.

The alarm was sounded at just 3:30, and fifteen minutes later the fire department arrived, but was unable to do anything on account of the strong wind and the lack of water.

Some gentlemen guests desiring to gain a near view of the building while the fire was at its height, raised umbrellas to shield them from the heat, but desisted when one of the sunshades caught fire.

There is a rumor, which could not be verified, that the insurance of the building was recently cancelled and new policies taken out on a average of 10 per cent. lower than the old rate.

Dr. Frazer, house physician, was in his room in the central tower when he heard the alarm. He promptly gathered up a load of his "traps," carried them down stairs, and went back after another load. On this trip he came near being suffocated with smoke, and had just regained the ground when the elevator fell.

Even with an abundant supply of water no fire department could have checked the fire after it had ten minutes' start, with such a breeze blowing. If the fire had started in any other corner but the one where ct did there would have been some chance with enginee and water.

A man who was employed in the house tingered so long in an upper room that his only means of escape was a third-story window. He found it necessary to jump to the veranda roof below, and then drop from that to the ground, escaping without injury.

It chanced that the man who built the bestel and the means the starter and the starter was the product and the pro

The murderer secreted himself in the woodshed of the Weinburg residence in some manner last night. At 9 o'clock this morning Maggie went out to get some wood. She had picked up a few sticks when Pfeifie fired. His bullet entered her left eye and crashed through the brain. The girl died at 12:30 o'clock at the Fannie Paddock Hospital. She was 24 years old. She helped support an aged father and two younger children. Pfeife had been paying her attentions for three years, but she did not like him and told him so. On March 27 he was arrested on her complaint, charging him with threatening to bill her. He had said he wou'd kill her before she should marry another. The case was continued two weeks, and last Monday was dismissed because she falled to prosecute.

The natives showed great determination, and are still in force on the Pung Jkaro River. The third brigade has Joined the first and second brigade at Sado.

The natives kept up a fire on the British cops and Maceo was captured. The bridge was finally finished and Col. Baty, who was in command of the guides, crossed over safely with orders to form a camp in the morning and destroy the native villages. The enemy, finding that their fire had not prevented the completion of the bridge, decided to destroy it. During the night they threw immense logs into the river above the bridge. These were caught in the rapid current and carried down with great force against the frail bridge, smashing it to pieces. With the destruction of the bridge col. Baty and his party were cut off from the main body of the British forces to be signaled across the river to Gen. Waterfield, who signaled back orders for Col. Baty to retreat. Gen. Waterfield said that his forces would cover the retreat with their mountain battery and Maxim guns, which were moved to the bank of the river for this purpose. Col. Baty executed the retreat in a masterful manner. When hotly pressed by the enemy a halt would be made and awithering fire poured into the pursuers, whose confusion would enable the British force to retree. These tactics were followed until the enemy was within thirty yards of the river. Col. Baty was killed by a bullet just as the British got within hailing distance of Gen. Waterfield's camp. (The Hon. G. M. Curzon: "Problems of the Far West:") In the bulk of the Chinese army (I except the Tien-Tsin Army Corps) and officer still only has to qualify by passing a standard in archery, in fencing with swords, and in certain gymnastic exercises. To the same deeply-imbedded fallacy must be attributed the collateral opinion that a civilian must be much better fitted to command a battalion than a military man, because he is supposed, in the course of his studies, to have read something of the art of war. And when we examine what this art, in its literary presentation, is, we find that the standard military works in China are some 3000 years old, and that the authority in highest fepute, Sun-tse by name, solemnly recommends such maneuvers as these: "Spread in the camp of the enemy voluptuous musical airs so as to soften his heart"—a dictum which might have recommended itself to Plato, but would hardly serief.

euvers as these: "Spread in the camp of the enemy voluptious musical airs so as to soften his heart"—a dictum which might have recommended itself to Plato, but would hardly satisfy Von Moltke.

The British army could not be worse—nay, it would be far better—led were the commander-inchief compelled to be a senior wrangler and the generals of division drawn from the senior class. It cannot be surprising that the Chinese officers, so recruited and thus taught, destitute of the slenderest elements either of military knowledge or scientific training omcers, so recruited and thus taught, destitute of the sienderest elements either of military knowledge or scientific training, should earn the contempt of their followers. Their posts are usually acquired either by favoritism or by purchase. When it is added that they are also, as a rule, both corrupt and cowardly, that they stint the men's rations and pilfer their pay, and that when an engagement takes place they commonly misdirect it from a sedan-chair in the rear, we have the best reasons for expecting uniform and systematic disaster.

The Dominie's Prayer.

Miss Molly Elliot Seawell relates the following anecdote in the course of a sketch of John Paul Jones, in the Century sketch of John Paul Jones, in the Century for April:

The landing on St. Mary's Isle thoroughly alarmed the coasts, and the name and character of the vessel and her commander were well known. The Ranger beling seen beating up the Solway toward the "lang town o' Kirkcaldy," the frightened people assembled on the shore, and presently down came their "meenister," the Rev. Mr. Shira, lugging a huge arm chair, which he flung down on the shore, and then plumped himself violently into it. He was short of breath, and very annyr with the Diety for permitting such doings as Paul Jones's; and, puffing and blowing, he made the following prayer, which tradition has preserved:

"Now. Lord, dinna ye think it is a shame fer ye to send this vile pirate to rob our folk o' Kirkcaldy? For ye ken they are puir enough already, and hae maething to spare. They are all fairly guild, and it wad be a pity to serve them in sic a wa'. The wa' the wind blows he'll be here in a jiffy, and wha kens whathen may do? He is name to guid for ony-thing. Sae tak' you wul o't, Lord!"

The prayer appears to have been effective; for at that very moment the wind changed, and blew "the scoundrel out o' our gate." title of a very interesting lecture delivered recently by Prof. Le Conte of the Berkeley University.

The lecturer, in a comprehensive manner, gave an account of the formation of glackers and the condition in which they left the surface of the earth when heat had melted the ice. He also told of the movement of the earth on its axis and the variation in space.

He devoted considerable attention to Croil's theory that the alternation of climates come about during a period of great eccentricity of the earth's orbit, that glacial conditions would then supervene in that hemisphere whose winter happens in aphelion, while the opposite hemisphere a mild climate would extend up to the polar regions. He also holds that the procession of the equinoxes by changing the incidence of the iseasons would revolutionize the climate over both homispheres, and cold conditions supervene, and thus, in course of time, that which has been the warm hemisphere would be the cold one and the reverse. He also holds that great alterations of climate would occur every 10,500 years, and that the last period of ecceptricity to which the ice age is believed to be due again, began more than 200,000 years ago and lasted for 160,000 years.

The lecturer said that while English and

As they grew up and begun to write, and got to know one another these authors became friends, and their friendship lasted with their lives. One after another they with their lives. One after another they all gained fame, and, although not the greatest of the five, perhaps, Longfellow was always the most popular. Not merelys in the United States and Great Britain, but in Canada and Australia and India, and wherever the English language is spoken, there were readers in plenty for the gentle, the manly, the beautiful verses of Longfellow.

His mother's father had been a general in the revolutionary army. His mother's brother (after whom he was named.) had been an officer in the American navy, losing his life in Preble's attack on Tripoli. His father, once a member of Congress, was one of the leading lawyers of Portland. And it was in that pleasant Maine city that Henry Wadaworth Longfellow was born, on February 27, 1807. There he passed his childhood. There he got that liking for the sea and for ships and for sallors which was to give a salt-water savor to so many of, his ballads. There, as he grew to boyhood, he browsed amid the books of his father's ample library, feeling his love for literature steadily growing.

He was a schoolboy of 12 when the first numbers of Irving's "Sketch Book" appeared, and he read it "with ever-increasing wonder and delight, spell-kound by its pleasant humor, its melancholy tenderness, its atmosphere of reverie." A few months before the "Sketch Book" appeared, and he read it "with a ver-increasing wonder and delight, spell-kound by its pleasant humor, its melancholy tenderness, its atmosphere of reverie." A few months before the "Sketch Book" appeared, and he read it be a surface of brayar's poetry almost at the same time he felt the charm of Irving's prose. When he was only 13 the young Longfellow began to write verses of his own, some of which were printed in the newspapers. He was only 14 when he passed the entrance examinations of Bowdoin, College, where he was to has Hawthorne as a classmate.

Long before his college course was over he had made up his mind to become a man of letters. In his last year at Bowdoin, being then 18, he wrote to Durant appeared condident and composed in his cell, which is one of the steel tanks in the new City Hall. His attorney was present during the interview given to the reporters, and when he made the statement that he had not seen Miss Williams for three weeks, which is said positively to be at variance with the facts, his attorney interrupted him, saying that he had talked enough. Durant's father and mother were with him and they feel keenly the position in which their son is placed. Dr. Gibson, the pastor of Emanuel Church, had an interview with Chief Crowley today. He stated that he had no knowledge of the terrible crimes, and referred bitterly to the fact that the newspapers were unfriendly to him because he had refused to accord them interviews in regard to the tragedy.

Miss Lucile Turner is the name of the young lady referred to in Chief Crowley's statement as the person to whom Durant and insulting proposals one Sunday night; on escorting her home. Since them thair relations have been somewhat strained. Miss Turner's a teacher in the Sunday-school and has known Durant since she first entered the church last May. She says that he was very much interested in his studies and work, fond of describing the horrors of a dissecting of reverence for the human body. Miss Turner has been cohnected with Durant in compiling a catalogue of the Sunday-school interest of the catalogue were written by Durant, others were written by George Mins, and the rest by Miss Turner herself. She identified Durant's handwriting in the several places, and when shown the scrap of paer in which Blanche Lamont's rings were returned to Miss Noble, positively identified the writing of the name George R. King on the paper as being that of Durant. She shift that Durant wrote that name.

The detectives have two theories with regard to this paper and writing. One is that Durant wrote that name.

The detectives have two theories with regard to this paper and writing, one restailed suddenly, in an excited and passionate tone: "I would get at home, in the society of the scholars who clustered about Harvard, then almost the sole center of culture in the country. His work for the college was not so exacting that he had not time for literature. The impulse to write poetry returned; yet the next book he published was the prose "Hyperion," which appeared in 1839, and which though it has little plot or action, may be called a romance. The youthful and poetle hero, a passionate poligrim in Europe, was, more or less, a reflection of Longfellow himself.

A few months later, in the same year, he published his first volume of poetry—"Voices of the Night"—in which he reprinted certain of his earlier verses, most of them written while he was at Bowdoin. Some of these boyish verses show the influence of Bryant, and others reveal to us that the young poet had not yet looked at life for himself, but still saw it through the stained-glass windows of European tradition. The same volume constained also some more recent poems: "The Belearurered City" and "The Researe and the

than any other American poet Longfellow had mastered the difficulties of the story in eong; and he knew how to combine the swiftness and the picturesqueness the ballad requires. His ballads have more of the old-dime magic, more of the early simplicity, than those of any other modern English author. Of its kind, there is nothing better in the language than "The Skeleton in 'Armor," with its splendfid lyric swing; and "The Village Blacksmith" and "The Wreck of the Hesperus" are almost as good in their humbler sphere. "Excelsior," in the same volume, voices the nobler aspirations of youth, and has been taken to heart by thousands of boys and girls.

wars ago. when o years of age he termoved to this city with his parents and has lived here ever since. Early in his career he manifested a religious inclination and a few years ago joined Emanuel Baptist church.

Miss Lamont was born in Rockford, Ill., nearly twenty-one years ago. When she was 10 years old she removed with her family to Billon, Mont., but lived there only a short time, her father having become cashier of a bank in Butte. The cenditions at Butte were not satisfactory for the children and Mrs. Lamont took Blanche, her three sisters and brother back to Rockford to educate them. After graduating she returned to Dillon. There she taught school until prostrated by typhoid fever last summer. The climate of Montana was not suitable to the convalescent and Blanche was sent to this city to her aunt, Mrs. C. G. Noble of No. 209 Twenty-first street, where her sister is still living.

valescent and Blanche was sent to this city to her aunt, Mrs. C. G. Noble of No. 209 Twenty-first street, where her sister is still living.

The autopsy on the body of Miss Lamont was held tonight. It showed that the girl had been strangled to death, her slayer using his hands, as shown by the deep imprint of fingers and mails. The physicians making te autopsies on tebodies state that both Miss Lamont and Miss Williams had been outraged before being killed, and further state that there was no doubt that both girls had led virtuous lives. In the case of the Lamont girl the autopsy indicated that the assault had been made on her about ten daysa go, which was the time she disappeared.

Coroner Hawkins today complained that his office is overworked at present. He has thirty suspicious deaths on his books upon which inquests have not been completed. During the month of April there were six deliberate murders. This number does not include the deaths of Blanche Lamont and Minnie Williams. These two make the total of eight violent deaths at the hands of persons known or unknown since April 1.

The Corquer will not be able to hold the inquests on the matter of the murder of the two girls until the latter part of the week, if the police will be ready to go on with the cases. Meantime separate juries will be impaneled who will view the remains. Miss Lamont's body will be shipped to her home in Dillon, Mont., for burial, while Miss William's remains will be buried in this city.

Detective Gibson, in speaking of the discovery of the body of Blanche Lamont in the little room in the steeple of the church, said tonight:

"A glance was sufficient to tell that the body was that of a very young woman and that she had veen dead some days. It was entirely nude. At first there did not appear to be any mark on the soft skin to indicate that death had come by violence. The body lay on its back, partly upright, the arms drawn up. The long thick hair sof the girl was drawn from under the head and lay along the floor in a shiny, silken s

THE ARREST OF DURANT.

WALNUT CREEK, April 14.—Eleven young men connected with the Signal Service arrived here at noon yesterday. They left for Mt. Diablo soon afterward. Officer Anthony of San Francisco followed them today, in company with Deputy Sheriff Palmer, from here. They met the men on their return trip at Fred Moses' place, seven miles from here. Palmer stepped up, Anthony remaining a few steps behind, inquiring of Lieut. Boardman, who was in command, if Durant was among the men. Durant at once stepped up to the officer. Anthony then informed him that he had come to arrest him on suspicion.

Durant was not moved in the least, smiling at both officers, and said: "How can I have done it? I was here last night." When it was explained to him that the murder had not been committed last night, but he right before, he said: "It is strange. I am only sorry for my poor mother. I can easily clear myself of this serious charge. Three of my companions were with me the night of the church festival and they will stay by me."

Lieut. Boardman here stated that he could not give up Durant, as he had THE ARREST OF DURANT.

Since then joy, fortune, love and fame Have-come my soul to claim. I see them smilling everywhere, But do not care. —Francis Saitus's "Dreams After Sunset."

Fair Lady April was in the sulks yes-terday over her fast-approaching dethrone-ment in favor of La Fiesta's stately Queen and wept bitter tears of woe. Under the sunny southern sky, the effect is indescribably brilliamt. Many of the schemes of decoration are very daring, and nearly all are decidedly effective. The col-ors of La Flesta are everywhere; say cano-ples and awmings shade the sidewalks, and bold sweeps of the brilliant drapery adorn the facades of nearly all the larger build-inus.

The air is filled with the flutter of miltions of flests benners, and miles of Japansee lanterns bold a suggestion of fairyland to come, when mischlevous sprites shall revel in the mad merriment of the carmival dime, and fun shall reign supreme among the masked subjects of the flests queen. One of the most marked of the especial decorations is the Crystal Palace.

eature, the whole facade being a solid mass of bright draperies. The large hotels vie with each other in decoration, and the gay colors climb to the domes and spread in dazzling sheets below. The Hollenbeck is especially bril-liant as to sidewalk decorations.

The other large blocks are not behind hand in their display of loyalty, with the exception of the Stimson Block, which runs the risk of the royal censure by standing solemn and unadorned in the midst of the prevailing brightness.

Many other buildings show notable decorations, which retain a large measure of individuality. decorations, which retain a large measure of individuality while blending perfectly with the general effect, and the whole city stands on tiptoe with eager antici-pation of the coming festivities.

HIGH JINKS.

The Roystering Carnival Will Begin

This Evening. The carnival will commence in ear-nest this evening with the Pageant of the Freaks and the burlesque installation of the flesta government at Hazard's Paof the fiesta government at Hazard's Pavilion. The participants in these revelries will meet in mask and costume at fiesta headquarters and fall into line at 7 o'clock sharp. Thence the freaks will march to the City Hall, where they will be joined by the incumbents of the various city offices. The procession will then move down Third street to Main, thence north to the junction, along Spring to Fourth, where it will turn into Broadway and thence to the Pavillon.

Among other features are the fiesta police department, which will assemble at the Blanchard-Fitzgerald Hall at 6 at the Blanchard-Fitzgerald Hall at 6 o'dlock, and the flesta fire brigade which will assemble at the Plaza engine-house, where its apparatus is housed, at

The programme will open with the "overthrow of the liberal council, or justice will prevail," in connection with which H.R.H. Body Guard will introduce a grand drill and chorus. This will be followed by a most realistic drama, entitled "A Life for a Life." during which the flesta fire department will give an exhibition of its prowess in quick hitching, etc. The entertainment will conclude with a roaring farce, entitled "Open on Sundays, or McGinty's Saloon." Several noted specialites will be introduced in this number. Among others who will participate will be the celebrated Brown and Harris team, who, with the kind permission of Manager Pietrich of the Orpheum, will do an entirely new turn especially arranged for this occasion.

The Tropa de Caballeros Angelenos, which will participate in the flesta pageants, has been in charge of the Native California Committee, Dr. Fleming, chairman. It was organized by John C. Cline, ex-Sheriff, and the members come from all over Southern California. They will be richly costumed in the "chiarro" style, the somberos having been procured from Mexico. The members will all ride with Spanish bit, spur and saddle, and with well-reined horses, furnishing a brilliant

The arrangements of the Commercial travelers for their display in tomorrow's parade were completed yesterday at their meeting at the Workman building. The large attendance yesterday proved the interest the traveling men are taking in the flesta and shows that they will have a representation of over 200 of their num-representation of over 200 of their number.

As previously outlined they will be seated in tally-hos, drawn by six horses, the vehicles and animals to be claborately decorated with flowers. A great many of the traveling men have arrived from the north to participate in the festivities. All the commercial travers are urgently requested to register at the Hollenbeck Hotel office in order to be assigned to seats in the tally-hos.

They will be expected to assemble tomorrow promptly at 12:30 o'clock at the Tally-ho Stables on Broadway, near First, and proceed to the place designated in the line of march.

They have reserved some great surprises in their display, that will be fully appreciated by the public.

FIESTA NOTES.

The concert orchestra will have a re-hearsal at 1:30 p.m. today at Music Hall, and all members are requested to be present.

The young men who have been busy for the past few days decorating Spring and Main streets are playing in hard luck. They woke up Sunday morning to find over three thousand of their lanterns destroyed by the rain. They worked hard all day Sunday to replace as many as possible. The display is a credit to the city, and the young men are deserving of aid from the Fiesta Committee, as their loss will be heavy.

The members of the concert The members of the concert chorus are requested to meet promptly at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening at the stage entrance of Hazard's Pavilion. Tickets for members of the chorus may be obtained of E. F. Kubel at the Sunday World office on South

Electricity's New Starting Point. (Thomas C. Martin, in the Century for April:) It must not be supposed that the new electricity represented by Nikola Tesla is iconoclastic. In the minds of a great many people of culture the idas pregreat many people of culture the loss pre-valls that invention is as largely a pro-cess of pulling down as of building up; and electricity, in spreading from one branch of industry to another, encounters the prejudice that always rebuffs the in-novator. The assumption is false. It may be true that in the gladatorial arena where the principles of science contend, one be true that in the gladatorial arena where the principles of science contend, one party or the other always succumbs and drags out its dead; but in the arts long survival is the law for all the appliances that have been found of any notable utility. It simply becomes a question of the con-tracting sphere within which the old ap-paratus is hedged by the advent of the new; and, that relation once established by processes complex and long continued, capable even of mathematical determina-tion, the two go on together, complemen-tary in their adjustment to specific human needs. In its latest outgrowths, electri-

tary in their adjustment to specific human needs. In its latest outgrowths, electrical application exemplifies this. After many years' use of dynamo-electric nachinery giving what is known as a "continuous current," the art has reached the conclusion that only with the "alternating current" can it fuifill the later duties laid upon it, and accomplish the earlier tasks that remain untouched. With the continuous current we have learned the rudiments of lighting and power distribution. With the alternating current, manupulated ments of lighting and power distribution. With the alternating current, manipulated and coaxed to yield its highest efficiency, we may solve the problems of aerial and marine navigation by electricity, operate large railway systems, transmit the energy of Niagara hundreds of miles, and, in Mr. Tesla's own phrase, "hock our machinery directly to that of Nature."

TUCSON BREVITIES.

The new bicycle club celebrated its initial event in fine style. Thursday night they lined up over sixty wheels, many of the riders of the fair sex, and started for Fort Lowell, an abandoned military post a few miles out. Music and a genuine Mexican supper of tamales, enchriades, and good coffee had been sent out ahead. The night was perfect, the moon bright, the road good, and the Mexican supper proved up to expectations. They had a jolly evening, dancing in one of the old garrison buildings.

The murder of a Chinese in Nogales, by having his throat cut, is the second of the kind recently, the first occurring at Tucson brief the first occurring at Tucson fhree weeks ago. In Tucson it is thought by some that a "Jack the Ripper" has broken out among the Chinese. This is hooted by officers, who declare positively that they have the "ght man in jail at Tucson. The Chinese can be spared well enough, though the means of their taking-off is brutal.

In the valley below town the Chinese nave proved themselves good irrigators. For years they were believed to have appropriated more water than they were entitled to, as their fields were always green while those of their Mexican neighbors were brown and dry. During the month of March the new zanjero made an investigation. To his great surp. see he discovered that the Chinese gardeaurs, against whom so much complaint was made, were using less than half the water per acre for their gardens than was being used for ordinary ranching. Thus for the month of March, Wing Mow, who gardens about twenty-one and a quarter acres, used the water twenty-four hours. On' the other hand, for the same time, M. 3. Samaneigo, who farms to alfalfa and barley twenty-up half acres, twenty-five hours; Sixters of St. Joseph, thirty acres, seventy-two hours of water; Leandro Sais, thirteen and one-half acres, twenty-five hours; Sixters of St. Joseph, thirty acres, seventy-line hours These names and figures give an average illustration of the manner in which water is used. C. May and H. J. Dowdle. Going below the springs, they started to drift to strike the water at about a depth of thirteen feet. They are now thirty yards from the springs, and the dich is a foot deep. Here, elready, a good irrigating system is flowing. Small fish were seen in the water, coming from between the strata of clay and sand. When the spring is reached a large flow will, it is confidently expected, be developed. This will be conveyed to the valley, seven miles below, and will irrigate considerable land. Most gratifying reports are brought from Clifton. The camp is turning out more exper than ever before, and new improvements are being made in almost every part of the work.

On the new Gila Valley, Globe and Northern road good progress is being made. This week trains from both directions were several hours late, owing to the front. The pile bridge of 130 feet length across Cottonwood marsh half a mile north of Pima was completed this week and the track is how midway between Pima and Thomas. Recently a cave was discovered of unknown extent in Northern Arizona. Two boys of Pima named McBride and Buil have discovered another; this one containing archaelogical treasures. It proved a mine rather than a cave, with a main shaft at an incline of about 15 deg, and several side tunnels. They explored three of the laterals. One they peneirated 400 feet and found there numerous chambers; in them rare Indian pottery, specimens of which they have in their possession. Near the mouth of the cave were ruins of breastworks. How Tesla Creates Light.

(Thomas C. Martin in the Century for April:) Between us and the sun stretches the tenuous, sens.tive ether, and every sensation of light that the eye experiences is caused by the effect of five hundred trillions of waves every second impressed on the ether by the molecular energy of the sun traveling along it rhythmically. If the waves have a lower frequency than this 500,000,000,000,000, they will chiefly engender heat. In our artificial methods of getting light we imitatively agitate the ether so poorly that the waves our bon-fires set up rarely get above the rate at which they become sensible to us in heat, and only a few waves attain the right pitch of rapidity to cause the sensation of light. At the upper end of the keyboard of vibration of the ether is a high, shrill and yet inaud-ble note—"Eght"—which we want to strike and to keep on striking; but we fumble at the lower, base end of the instrument all the time, and never touch that topmost note without wasting the largest part of the energy of the intermediate ones, which we do not at all wish to touch. Light (the high note) without heat (the lower notes) in the desideralum. Now, Mr. Tesla takes his currents of high frequency and high potential, subjects the incandescent lamp to them, and, skipping some of the intermediate wasteful heat stages of lower wave vibration experienced in the old methods, gets the ether-charge, which it receives and exercises electrostatically, he gets the ether medium into a state of excitement in which it seems to become How Tesla Creates Light.

But dad, he used to lead the way,

So cheerin'-like, so tender—''Come!

THE RAYMOND FIRE

The famous Raymond Hotel at Pasadena (East) is in ashes. Its guests are scattered-fortunately without loss of life-and its large business has been suddenly blotted out. Its destruction is an individual disaster to the owners, for which they are entitled to public sympathy, and it is a serious (though only temporary) loss to Pas adena and Los Angeles, as well as to the tourist business of Southern California generally.

The loss must and will be replaced, by building on either the old site or on some other near and suitable spot. The southern country needs such a hotel too much to leave this neces sary work long neglected, and as the investment in the Raymond has proved a most profitable one, capital will be quick to take advantage of the conspicuous opening made by the flames yesterday. How profitable this investment has proven would be a surprise to even our own people, were they given the figures. At this writing we do not, of course, know the intentions of Mr. Raymond or of the Raymond & Whitcomb Company, in respect to the matter of rebuilding.

Los Angeles city has long needed a creating such a caravansary has been delayed amazingly. The delay has not been creditable to our men of capital and enterprise. Will that delay continue?

Standing in sight, almost, of the ruins of the famous Raymond Hotel, it seems to The Times that the question should not require long for a decisive answer. Before the expiration of thirty days a site and a plan for a grand tourist hotel in or near the city ought to be chosen, and within sixty days work should be begun thereon.

"A FAKIR'S FIZZLE."

Under the above title the Stockton Mail prints the following editorial on the tom-tom-beating and hewgag-blowing newspaper of San Francisco that is making an exhibition of itself in connection with the San Joaquin

"Yalley Railroad enterprise.

"The scheme of whooping up stock subscriptions in the San Joaquin Valley to the new railroad company by San Francisco newspaper fakers has come to grief. The inspired idiot who conceived the idea must have entirely overlooked the fact that the people residing in the valley had overlooked the fact that the people residing in the valley had already made their own plans for raising money and stock subscriptions, and that these plans were being very successfully executed. It probably never once occurred to him that in acting upon any assumption to the contrary he was guilty of gratuitous impertinence.

The directors of the San Francisco and San Joaquin Valley Railroad Company are, of course, not responsible for the eccentricities of San Francisco newspaper proprietors. In this particular instance of over-zealous activity in their behalf they may well have reason to pray to be saved from some of their friends. It does not appear that the directors have in any way sanctioned the scheme of canvassing for subscriptions so rashly adopted by the San Francisco newspaper in question. The uter collapse of the experiment last night, so far as stockton is concerned, was not due to any indifference on the part of our Church Spires and Bells.

Church Spires and Bells.

Church spires began to come into fashion about 400 A.D., and thereby hangs a tale. Soon after the erection of some of the first spire-crowned churches, several of them were thrown down or greatly damaged by lightning. To the leading ecclesiastics this evidenced the presence of the "Prince of the Powers of the Air," and they put their heads together in an effort to circumvent the evil one. Bishop Paulinus of Nola solved the problem by placing a rude form of a bell in his church, which was rung on the approach of every storm to frighten away the devil and his angels. As the church of Nola stood between two high, wooded hills, it escaped injury; and the bell scheme was considered a great success. The news of the exemption of the Nola church from the devil's powers soon spread, and other Italian churches got bells and instructions for their use. Lightning, however, continued to destroy spires and churches, not withstanding the bells; but this was charitably attributed to the failure to ring during the storm, or to ring with the proper number of sultable prayers. The church bell of today is a relic of the past; its present use is wholly unnecessary, especially in cities; and it might well be discarded, the same as other things which have become worn out and useless.

A lily and a rosebud close in a garden grew,
The lily pure and spotiess, the rose of reddest

The rosebud eager, longing; the lily calm, resigned.

The rose upon a virgin breast in dreams of passion slept;
The lily in the hand of death its silent vigil kept.

EASTER SUNDAY.

How the Churches Celebrated the Happy Day.

The Floral Decorations This Year Were More Than Usually Elaborate.

Cooeur de Lion Commandery of Knights Templar Listens to an Address Appropriate to the Occasion.

St. Paul's Church was crowded to the doors at the 11 o'clock service yesterday. The Easter decorations were very beautiful; the chancel wall on either side of the sitar was lined with a deep dado of callas, relieved with the rich green of their leaves; the altar vases were filled with white rosse, and banked about with the same pure flowers, and date palms rose high behind the altar. Callas were massed at the left of the pulpit, surmounted by a lovely cross of pink carnations; feathery aprays of white Bankshire roses were caught at the right of the pulpit. At the alde of the organ rose a pyramid of callas, and the windows were decorated with flowers and vines. The baptistry was decorated by J. M. Griffith, and was a bower of white and green; the front was covered with a solid mass of white carnations, and the background was filled with palms; a drooping rope of white carnations and smilax swung across the entrance. The lectern was wreathed about its base with callas, above which it was covered with pink roses. As the procession came slowly in, the Rev. Mr. Gray paused before the beautiful memorial window and read the dedication service. The window is of exquisite-design, repersenting the shepherd carrying a little lamb in his arms, and surrounded by his flock. At the top is the inscription: "Blessed are the pure in heart," at the base: "In loving memory of Katherine Mc-Farland," and the dates 1878 and 1894. Below the window were banked white carnations and mignomette, with loose bunches of white flou-de-lis, the favorite flower of the lovely girl, rising at either side. Just beneath was a heart of white carnations and mignomette, with loose bunches of white flou-de-lis, the favorite flower of the lovely girl, rising at either side. Just beneath was a heart of white carnations and my promette, or firm of the choir, J. C. Dunster, was excellently rendered. The choir consisted of fifty voices, and the soloists were Miss Bosch, soprano; Mr. Zincke, tenor, and Mr. Logie, bass. The "inflammatus," from Rossini's "Stab KNIGHTS TEMPLARS' EASTER. The Easter services at the Unity Church were of a peculiarly striking and impressive character. Cocur de Lion Commandery, Knights Templars, were in attendance and occupied the entire central portion of the church, while Sir Arthur Brookman, prelate of the commandery, conducted the ritual services, and Rev. J. S. Thomson delivered a sermon appropriate to the occasion.

ondoughed the ritual earrices, and Review of the Control of the Co riate to the occasion.

The decorations were very beautiful, and ness of purpose, showed in what close relation Christ stood to the Masonic fraternity.

"There are three professions made in Masonry," said Dr. Thomson, "which are most potent factors. The unity of God, the immortality of the human soul, and the Golden Rule exemplified by Christ in the parable of the Good Samaritan. Masonry belongs to no church, no temple, no Bible, no creed. It is older than all the saviors who may have tlessed the human race, and is the only religious organization which fully and consistently has recognized the truth that men should live in society with religion, equality and fraternity as guiding principles. When we read the Arthurian legends we learn that Arthur and his knights gathered at a round table so that no place was more homorable than another, and so we see that even our Celtic ancestors held that equality in esteem which forbids one man arrogating to himself in the sight of God any superiority over his fellows.

The reverend speaker then proceeded in the sight of God any superiority over his fellows.

The reverend speaker then proceeded to draw the parallel between the early races who, in their astronomical worship, were overcome with the fear, on the 22d of Decemebr, that the sun would be overcome by the typhon of darkness, and then reduced when, on the 25th, the Lord of Light and Life arose again in the heavens, with the coming of Christ. The Magi who saw the star in the East, and were Persian Masons, were joined by the angels and hosts of heaven in rejoicing over the Child who had come into the world that was sinking into ain and iniquity, and was to be as a light to triumph over darkness.

"In Lent we surrender ourselves to privations," continued the speaker, "because Christ, too, fulfilled the old fast of the primitive races. He went to John the Baptist and told him He wanted to join the Easters and be baptised, but was met with the reply that having sounded the depths of humanity and heights of divinity it was not necessary that He should be baptized. But He wanted to know by experience what the human race endured and was baptized and fasted and duly prepared for the three Essenence degrees. He went away by himself and fought against the promptings of the fiesh, against ani-maliam. It is not possible for a soul to be carried to heaved on a flowery bed, but only as Christ cit so must we fight against the wrong within and without."

Proceeding to compare the various symbols with their ancient meanings in the light of Christ's teachings, Dr. Thomson lastly referred to the cross as the most ancient, as it is the most revered of all. "The cross," he remarked," symbolizes the inner man as perpendicular and the animal as horizontal, and when both meet and neither dominates the other then we can carry it into that house not made with hands. We are all in our own persons crosses. Physiologists say that one side of my body, and so we each carry the cross within us. It is one of the oldest signs of antiquity, and flatura, Mars. Venus and Meroury are represented wholly or in part by this symbol. But it means much more. It signifies that the eternal mind came down shooting into matter and inspiring it with life, it being the father and mother of all living things. The ancient Egyptians when they desired to signify eternity described the circle, and so when we see a cross encircled we are looking on the emblem of the knowledge of eternal life. And this doctrine of eternal life Christ preached with greater fullness. His cross meant physical suffering, and you are pledged to suffer to the death and fight sin at all times and be on the side of purity and goodness—you are Red Cross Knights. "That Masons should work in secret is not strange. For the first five centuries the Christians did the same. There was the neophyte and then the catechism, and then the initiation into the mysteries of the resurrection, and so St. Paul says do good to all men, but particularly to the house of the 'faithful,' and the 'elect' are also mentioned, both of them being classes of initiated Christians.

"The old gods of mythology had their resurrection. Hercules went to Pluto's home and returned, and Coiris went to the black region of death and came back. So Christ Himself came back to fulfill the prophecy of Masonry fo phecy that had been symbolized was actualized.

"Having fulfilled so much will he not fulfill more? In the far east they are living, they say, under the ninth incarnation of Krishna and Buddha and are awaiting yet another. Christ will be the tenthete perfect number, the fulfilless of God. The mythologies of the past have given place to the Christ for He fulfilled what these gods typifed and His rule is more satisfying. But will he not fulfill still more. What of brotherhood, brotherhood, brotherhood! Where is it? Masonry stands for it. But we have contention in our homes, church is against church and seet against sect. No, it hasn't begun, but the time will come when every man will grasp his fellow with heart-trembling hand, and one church—and it will be none of those we have today, thank God, for they are very poor. The high spiritual dreams of antiquity are fulfilled in Christ, so dream on, but see to it that you dream big enough. They will be fulfilled, for the wisdom of God is never to be exhausted.

"And so filled with such thoughts I am pleased to meet you today, you who are among the foremost Caristians of the nine.

dom of God is never to be exhausted.

"And so filled with such thoughts I am pleased to meet you today, you who are among the foremost Christians of the nine-teenth century. If a knight becomes impure, dishonored or untrue, I consider him the most perjured man of all, for none others have taken such oaths to be loyal and true till death. Act always that your country may be better for your having lived; that the city may be ruled for the good and innocent; that justice may go back to the courts from which to some extent it has been expelled. No perjured wretch in the depths is so bad as a knight, false to his vows, who looks on evils such a these without contending against them. Have pure hearts, loving souls, exemplify the life of the Master Christ and the world will be better for you, and finally you will join the Master at the feet of eternal truth and eternal love forever-more."

Dr. Chichester's sermon was one of his best, the text being Matthew xxviil, 8: "And they departed quickly from the sepulchre with fear and great joy, and did run to bring His disciples word." The discourse was full of uplifting Easter thoughts, and must have been unspeakably comforting to those who have been recently bereaved. Never before did such an immense audience gather in Immanuel Church as was present at this service. The aisies were filled with chairs' and the new gailery was used for the first time, temporary seats being placed there.

AT ST. JOHN'S EFISCOTAL.

St. John's Episcopal Church was beautifully decorated for the Easter services, with the usual masses of callas, in this case very tastefully arranged. A friese of solid callas decorated the chancel, and the pillars were covered with the stately become. Great chains of callas framedfanciful of headgar were in evidence.

The choir, under the direction of Fredsrick Stevenson, rendered the grand triumphal music of the resurrection of our Lord most beautifully. The Easter anthems were diorning.on's 'Christ Our Passover' and 'They Have Taken Away My Lord,' by Stainer. The setting of the 'Te Deum' and 'Benedictus' was also Stainers, with solo and quartette parts rendered by Mrs. H. L. Hyatt, Miss Stearns, Messra. Eaden and Robinson.

Before the sermon, Dr. Tayler came forward and warmly thanked his parishioners for their kindness during his recent severe illness. On account of this illness, Rev. H. Judd delivered the sermon, taking his text from I Thessalonians, iv, 14: 'For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also who sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him,''

Dr. Judd dwelt more particularly upon the second part of the text, in relation to the significance which the resurrection of Jesus has to our own resurrection. The natural craving of the soul to know more of the hereafter, is right and noble. All forms of animal life must die, and the question whether these are destined to reappear in the forms once borne by them, is present to every thoughtful mind. The identity of the soul as a unit and indestructible, is an inscinctive feeling planted in every human breast, but the longing for some positive evidence that we will again see our loved ones as they once were, is universal.

'Oh, give us back the old faith' said the speaker. 'Give us the confidence of a certain faith, the doctrines and creeds of the Christian church, 'I believe in the resurrection and eternal life, and said that, as 'Jesus was the first fruits from the grave, but not He-we, as well as the witnesses of His resurrection, should believe that, as Helet not His body in the grave, our boddence was exquisitely rendered.

Evening service was held at 7:30 o'clock, full choral service and no sermon. Stainer's festival setting was used for the Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis, and the anthem was Vincent's 'As It Be

W. S. Manning lectured yesterday after-noon at Maccabee Temple on more fruit and less grain for food. The lecturer declared that proper food was the chief fac-tor in producing certain heroditary traits necessary in the attainment of the best results in the breeding of "blooded" ani-mals, and that man was by no means ex-empt from this general law of nature. Mr. Manning thinks that food reform is mais, and that man was by no means exempt from this general law of nature.

Mr. Manning thinks that food reform is the only way to furnish a satisfactory solution of the social problem of the age. Although himself a vegetarian, he does not condemn the use of meat, as the environments surrounding most workers render this food necessary to systems deprayed by life-long use of unnatural foods. When the human stomach regains its normal tone, this unhealthy and unnecessary food will naturally be swept away, leaving man to his original diet of fruits and nuts alone.

Cereal and farinaceous foods, Mr. Manning condemns, in any and every form, bread, pastry, cakes, pudding, porridge, and such wegetables as peas, beans, rulse, lentils, etc. Grain foods are declared to be unnecessary and highly injurious, nerve-exhausting and indigestible, and in all ways totally unfit for human consumption. Fruit alone, with the occasional addition of nuts, is the proper diet of man, according to Mr. Manning's theory.

Every element necessary to the support of the human organism in its natural and normal condition, is to, be found in the orange, bamana, guava, apple, pear, melon, peach, apricot and all sorts of clible berries. The olive and pomelo contain a healthful bitter which should take the place of quinine and other tonics, and, if fruits in a proper condition of freshness and ripeness are used exclusively as the diet of the human race, and combined with nature's remedies of pure air, healthful disappear.

"All forms of disease can be prevented."

ful exercise and proper repose, disease will disappear.

"All forms of disease can be prevented by a proper diet," said the speaker, "and the deeire for all other forms of stimulant, such as tea, coffee, alcoholic liquors and tobacco, will disappear as the palate becomes refined by the use of fruit alone, which supplies, in its organic form, all the stimulant necessary to the system."

Mr. Manning believes that California is the destined center of the new movement, on account of its great natural advantages in the matter of fruit foods, and that the reform will spread forth through the world from this State. Mr. Manning will go into the details of his new system of diet in a lecture next Sunday afternoon.

words found in John xii, 32: "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto Me." and from it drew his theme: "The Attractions for Men in Christ."

Said the speaker: "A great thought stirs the world this morning; we feel it in the air; it breathes through all the earth; it strikes on the ear in the songs that are sung; it ascends in the fragrance of the flowers that lend their beauty to its commemoration. Throughout all lands bleased by Christian civilization this is a memorable day, in which the fact of victory by apparently hopeless defeat quickens, expands, illumines, for among the words associated with crucifixion are these, 'And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto Me.' We strike a deep theme when we speak of the crucified One. There is more in the man than in His exploits, the love that is found in Him outreaches the story of the love, when best told. We may not define the matchless magnet found in the son of man, but humanity recognizes these five fundamental attractions which draw it to Christ: "First, His self-elevation to power. Power always attracts attention in the thunderbolt, the mighty wind, the powerful engine, and no less in the story of great men, who have made circumstances, commanded other men, and evolved epochs of thought and action. Jesus of Nasareth, like these, yet differing from all men, rrom His humble bench in a carpenter's shop, and during three short years of active ministry completed an ecclesiastical system that has stood for centuries, not only jarring and shivering the empire of Rome, but all other forms of evil in church or state, a power that glows in Him, compelling all systems to take His spirit and fulfill His mission.

"Second, His triumphant passage through every essential phase of human experiences. Millions have passed through the storms of life, but of only one can it be said, He was tempted in all points like as we are, yet without sin.' Hard it is to realize that Christ was a real person, but nothing was tempted in all points

His veins. He out-thought the despest thinkers and silenced their subtlest logic, yet the common people heard Him gladly. At home with the rich, yet no one so poor as to shrink from Him; stilling the sea by His power, and sitting amid a group of mothers, whose little ones were welcomed to His careas and benediction. The character of Jesus Christ is understood by Hindeo and Lapp, as by Esquimaux and savage, as by enlightened people, not as a Jew, but as my Lord and my God.

"Fourth, His comprehension of and sympathy with humanity. The cid man, the youth, the rich, the powerful, all classes, read this, not only in His face, but felt it in their seuls, and the outcast could not keep from Him. He knew the God.

EAST LOS ANGELES BAPTIST.

EAST LOS ANGELES BAPTIST.

The East Los Angeles Baptist Church held Easter services yesterday morning and evening. In the morning Rev. George E. Dye delivered a forcible sermon on "Immortality," from the text: "For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved we have a building of God, an house not made with hands eternal in the heavens."

"The immortality of the soul is the problem of problems," said the speaker.

"If a man die, shall he live again? Is the question of questions. Ancient science strove to settle it, and modern solence, leaves it still an open question. There are those who claim, with reason, that the very fact that we can remember and recollect things is proof sufficient of immortality. Others claim that in dreams, where the mind is on the alert while the body slumbers, is evidence sufficient to show that the soul will exist after the body is dead. "We are such stuff as dreams are, made of, 'says Shakespaers in 'Tempest.' Others again reason that imagination, acting like chain lightling, darting itself into every nook and corner of the universe, is evidence of the lifeless character of the soul. 'We cannot handle the soul,' says the objector; 'we cannot reduce it to metter and force.' Is it then unreal? Love, gratitude and hope are not material, but are they not real? The argument for immortality in the realm of the psychological is that the soul can never expand its powers bere in this life. Mind is too great. A Shakespeare, a Washington, a Newton, or an Edison can never expand the power of the size for immortality. If a bird's wings mean the air and a fish's fins the sea, this fond desire for immortality. If a bird's wings mean the air and a fish's fins the sea, this fond desire for immortality means another life. This desire to live beyond the grave has characterized the people of every nation. The strength and power of a locomotive is beyond the drawing of a mere toy wagon, so the soul has capabilities for expansion in another life. Again we approach the moral argumen

It proposes to incorporate into a town all that portion of territory north of the city limits of Pasadena up to the mountains. The expediency of the move is doubted by many citizens.

A mysterious cutting affray took place at Sycamore Grove yesterday afternoon. The butchers of the city were holding a pienic there, but it is not clear that they are responsible for the carving or the gore that was spilled. The principals in the affair tell so many conflicting stories that it is impossible to determine how the stabbing occurred.

About 7 o'clock last evening three men and a woman in a single buggy drove rapidly into East Los Angeles from the direction of Sycamore Grove. They were greatly excited and asked several persons whom they met to direct them to a doctor's office as quickly as possible. The buggy finally drew up in front of a drug store at No. 626 Downey avenue, and two young men covered with blood were helped out and entered the store, where the druggist proceeded to staunch the flood of blood from a knife wound behind one man's ear, and several wounds on the other man's body.

The man with the cut behind the ear sity is the mother of invention but what the necessity was for inventing such an infernal machine as the Times Santa Monica correspondent tells about in his letter published this morning, is something passing human understanding.
Its "pure cussedness" is something absooriginal. The inventor of it is to the far east and offer his services to the

The Times correspondent at San Bernar-line smites that the board of directors of he Chamber of Commerce of that city have lecided to discontinue the exhibit in their own city of the various products of their county. The old law allowed tim ten years, and many property-holders ave let their property be sold to the late (and remain there as they could,) and at the end of ten years they would edeem the delinquent taxes on the low aluation of the original assessment and enalty and 7 per cent. Interest. These aused the State to lose her money and he honest taxpayers have had to make it up. The new law, sec. 108, code sec. 597, provides that 'Whenever the State hall become the owner of any property old for taxes, and the deed of the State as been filed with the controller, as prolided in sec. 3785, the controller may uthorize the tax collector to sell the vided in sec. 3785, the controller may authorize the tax collector to sell the same, but no bids shall be received or accepted at such sale for less than the amount of all taxes levied upon such property, and all interests, costs, penalties and expenses up to the date of such sale." As the land is now to be assessed each year after its sale until deeded, it will not escape the increased valuation and penalties of each year as heretofore, and will likely take some of the nonsense out of would-be tax-evaders. The new law is calculated to extend the time for redemption for the poor delinquent (who in times past was unable to pay at the time of sale, and whose taxes were paid by the so-called 'tax shark,' who expected to get 50 per cent. interest or the land) by having the State carry him, and the penalty for delinquency, while the State carries him, will be treated as funds for the public benefit rather than heretofore as a private snap. "The delinquent can now go to the books cleared at once, without waiting to bunt up some tax-sale buyer, whose residence is, perhaps, unknown. The penalty is now so arranged as to make it for the interest of the delinquent to redeem as soon as possible from the State, when be-

is now so arranged as to make it for the interest of the delinquent to redeem as soon as possible from the State, when before it was to his interest to delay as long as possible. Last year the amount of property sold for taxes in this State was $10,500,000, of which $5,300,000 went to the State. Now it all goes to the State, and with a State officer to look after it, there ought to be some correction in the wholesele errors of assessment in some counties" of blood from a knife wound bealind on the other man's body.

The man with the cut behind the ear gave his name as Mart McCormick. The other wounded man was Harry Murray. The third man was Ferdolin Jenney, a barber employed in Miller's barber-shop in the Stimson block.

The moman, who was very handsomely and stylishly dressed, refused to give her mame, but at first professed to be McCormick's sister. This statement she afterward contradicted, and admitted that she was simply a friend of McCormick's, who had been acting as her escort. One of her sleves was saturated with blood where the head of her wounded gallant reclined during the drive to the city. Sergt. McKeag and Officer Craig of the East Side police force were soon an hand and took the entire party into custody. They were brought to the central station, where the wounded men were looked after by. The woman's story was that at about 3 o'clock in the afternoon she and McCormick drove out toward Pasadena in a buggy to see the ruins of the Raymond Hotel. Returning to the city about dusk two men stopped the horse in 'he vicinity of Sycamore Grove, with the evident purpose of robbery. Mr. McCormick jumped out of the buggy to drive the highwaymen off. when one struck him with a knife behind the ear. A man who was in a buggy just behind them came to McCormick's assistance, and the alleged rebers then stabbed him. At this point the woman fainted, and when she recovered

McCormick, however, told a different tale. He said he and the woman went to Sycamore Grove on a train. There he saw Murray, who was a friend of his, who invited them to drive back to town with him in his buggy. They accepted the invitation, and as they were about to start Murray got into a dispute with a man who had been holding his horse about compensation for the service. The man drew a knife and stabbed Murray several times, and before he could interfere, some one struck him behind the ear and knocked him down. were even more contradictory than those of the men.

The belid-up story is not believed by the police. There is a grave suspicion that Murray and McCormick had a quarrel and carved each other. Murray had three cuts in the back and one in the right breast, but none are serious.

It was discovered that the horse and buggy belonged to a livery stable on South Spring street, where Murray and the barber had rended it in the morning, and were to return it at 6 p.m.

Sergt. McKaig will go to Sycamore Grove to investigate the affair further, and find out the real circumstances of the case it any witnesses can be found.

THIS store will be open every day this week. The 100,-000 visitors who will visit the Fiesta this week we bid you a royal welcome. The store, as well as the city, will be in gay attire, the store will be open for the public to leave their packages; ask questions and be at home. Make this your headquarters to meet your friends and avoid all' confusion. Many things are here for you to consider. We buy goods in the largest quantities from the largest manufacturers and importers. We have the best staff to wait upon the trade; the goods are shown freely without urging sales; everything is done to promote the business along legitimate channels; all goods are fairly represented, with your money back if you want it; there can be no deception with this plan in operation. The silk department is showing a fine class of printed Indias for 25c a yard; the best quality wash Jap Kai Kai silks for 40c a yard; 100 styles in real silk taffetas for 50c a yd; there is no silk in this market the equal of this grade for less than 75c a yard; you will find better goods here for 60c, 75c and $1 a yard; fine plaids, the latest Paris craze, the price $1.25 and $1.50; if you want the newest at a reasonable price you will certainly look no farther; all-wool storm serges and boucle weaves in blacks and navy blues $1, $1.25 and $1.50 a yard; all-wool serges 44 inches wide for 50c and 75c a yard. The dress goods department is showing no old goods; everything is on the basis of the new tariff, which means a saving of from 25 to 50 per cent. of a reduction. To the thousands who will visit this city we ask you to come in; compare prices; see the magnitude of our dress goods stock; there is certainly merit in this in comparson with stocks carried in smaller towns. Our wash goods department offers superior attractions in the newest duck suitings, and all the new things in printed goods along with an abundance of white goods, including all the new ideas in dotted swisses; there will be a big demand for this class of goods this season. It was expected, when this race was first spoken of, that one or o of the northern crack ponies would sent down here; but, since none of them argived, it has been decided to change the conditions of the race to some extent. The race will be at one-half a mile, for pontes 14 hands 1 inch and under. The top weight will be 150 pounds. Four pounds will be allowed for every half inch under the standard. Owners must be dn poseasion of certificates of height from the official measurements of some polo club, and present the same to the clerk of the scales. of the prominent class-A men are interested in the great race, which deeply interested in the great race, which is being arranged by Knippenberg, of Syracuse fame, which is to be styled the Syracuse Annual, Class-A Stake. This event will be beld at the League of American Wheelmen meet on May 30, next, and is designed for the purpose of bringing the cracks of the North and South together. There are many local enthuslasts who consider Cleaver, McCrea, Miller, Taylor and a few others, the equals of the pick of the Northern class-A men, and the race will, therefore, be viewed with additional interest by reason of the fact that it will determine the question once for all.

ing season is that of "Lucky" Baidwin, says the Chicago Times-Herald. He has thirty horses in training for the campaign now just begun in the South. At the head of these is that good old horse Santiago, now 8 years old, and still expected to compete with the best horses on the turf this year. Should he be as good as he was in 1892, it will take the best horses in training to best him. In his career on the turf he has started fifty-six times and has won thirteen races, mostly over a distance of ground. Eight of these races were won in 1892, when he was by far the best handlcap horse at Gartield Park, defeating such good ones as Lorenzo and Whitney, both of which were almost invincible up to the time Santiago came from the East and lowered their colors.

Rey el Santa Anita is likely to prove one of the best handlcap horses of the season. His performances last year were more than above the average. One thing, in favor of this great son of Imp, Cheviot and Alaho is that he can carry weight, one of the great requisites in the make-up of a first-class raceborse and handlcapper. It has frequently been said that there never was a thoroughbred with a head formed like that of Rey el Santa Anita that did not prove to be a first-class raceborse. His head is more like that of a buildog than any other horse that raced in Chicago last season. It shows staying qualities and tenacity to a marked degree. He is ranked seight pounds below Domino, one of the admitted glants of last summer's crop of three-year-olds. It is doubtful, however, if the mighty son of Himyar and Mannie Gray can give Rey el Santa Anita that much weight and feat him at any distance, for "Lucky" Baldwin may have luck enough to show the best horse of the season.

In his turf career this wealthy Call-content has well carned his title of reason of the fact that it will determine question once for all.

Cleaver and Ulbricht, who are entered in several of the events at San Jose, on Friday and Saturday next, have been doing some fast work at the Athletic Park track lately. The other day, after warming up, they pedaled a mile in 2:17 3-5, which is within two seconds of the fastest time ever made over this track. Their first half was compassed in 1:08 flat.

The Acmes, being dissatisfied with the result of their last meeting, have challenged the Bay Citys to another 100-mile relay race. Should the challenge be accepted, which is not improbable, Ulbricht, Lacy and Cleaver of this city, all of whom are members of the Northern club, will ride for the Bay Citys.

The national bleycling racing circuit is to take in Los Angeles. San Francisco and San Jose this year: This means that the world's fastest racers will be seen in Los Angeles next fail, and that California will be breaking world's records when Eastern weather is too cold for racing. Other points in the far West in the national circuit are Sait Lake City, El Paso and Denver, while Phoenix may be added.

The question of requiring money to be paid at the time of making entries was discussed, as well as other terms affecting payment of entrance money, and it was decided that each association should have the privilege of making its own conditions regarding this matter, but a more general unifermity of conditions will prevail than ever before.

F. W. Loeber called the attention of those present to the necessity of each association on this circuit issuing a programme as soon as possible so that horsemen will know what the general will be, and thus enabling them to make arrangements accordingly. He also advised that these programmes be published not later than April 27. The urgency of this preparatory work was most clearly stated. In view of the uncertainty which existed owing to the cutting off of district appropriations, the various directors have been holding back awaiting the final decision, but now that all doubts about the Governor's action have vanished, it is absolutely necessary that the association begin work at once.

The grand circuit will offer larger purses and more liberal terms of entrance than ever before, so that, with these two great ends accomplished for the benefit of breeders and owners of light harness horses, all that is necessary to get large lists of entries is to publish the programmes at once.

Handicapping the Trotter.

A sudden departure for the East of George Green (Young Corbett) on Wednesday last upset the calculations of the L.A.A.C. completely, and much to the disgust of the local and visiting sports, who had counted upon seeing a rattling contest, there will be no mill at the club this week.

It is possible, however, that a match will be made for Gallagher within the week, as Jack Fogarty, a good 140-pound man, is very anxious to meet the club's boxing instructor. Should this match fall through, another may be arranged between Dal Randicapping the Trotter.

President Davies, of the Des Moines Association, is the first of the track managers to attempt this year to bring trotters or pacers together by the imposition of exta weight to be carried in the sulky cushion, says the Horseman. His conditions called for trotters eligible to the 2:04 class to draw 175 pounds; those eligible to 2:05 class 185 pounds; those eligible to 2:05 class 185 pounds; 155 pounds, in his free-for-all trot. In his free-for-all class pacing horses of the 2:02 class must draw 180 pounds; 2:04 class, 155 pounds; 2:05 class, 165 pounds; 2:06 class, 160 pounds; and 2:07 class, 155 pounds; 2:05 class, 165 pounds; 2:06 class, 160 pounds; and 2:07 class, 155 pounds; 2:06 class, 160 pounds; and 2:07 class, 155 pounds; 2:06 class, 160 pounds; and 2:07 class, 165 pounds; 2:06 class, 160 pounds; 2:06 class, but those gentlemen who have made so great a point of this matter have apparently failed to notice that the conditions will obtain fully for Mr. Davies just what he wants, for the good and sufficient reason that, while they will not prevent a horse with a record of 2:07 drawing as much weight as his driver pleases up to 180 pounds (in the pacing race), they will prevent a horse with a record which bars him from the 2:03 class competing in the contest drawing less than 180 pounds. This, after all, is that which President Davies sought to obtain. The question then arises will the imposition of twenty-five pounds make any material difference to any horse drawing it on a bleycle sulkey. With twenty-five pounds extra of lead in the sulky cushion so impede one trotter that another less speedy will be enabled to trot on equal terms with him? Many of the most famous drivers weigh more than the regulation 180 pounds, yet their horses do not appear to be seriously handicapped by the extra weight. Loaded on sulkies of the old steel-tire type the handicap would make a far wider difference to the horses, but it is a very open question whether the addition of a few pounds to the load to

An event of interest to every college in this country will be the visit of Cornell's eight to England. The crew has engaged passage for England for May 29, and $8000 of the $10,000 required for expenses is said to have been raised. The members of the crew will have a month of rowing at Henley before the races on the 1st of July, which ought to get them in good shape. The crew will be especially light and active, as the race is a dash of one and a half miles, and a four-mile crew would be entirely too slow and heavy. Courtney, the coach, declares the red and white has never been represented by better men. Twenty-three men are in training, with Shape, captain of last year's university crew, as captain. The average weight of the candidates is about 164 pounds now, which means under 160 by summer, or ten pounds lighter than a Yale crew. Cornell will meet some tough competitors in the eights of the Leander and London rowing clubs, made up of Old Cambridge and Oxford oarsmen, but Courtney stroke is at its best for two miles and under, and cornell men have a right to be hopeful of success in England, aided, as they will be, by the superiority of American rowlocks, shells and rigging methods.

The squad from which the eight will be dinally selected is made up of R. L. Shape, captain; E. C. Hager, F. M. Freeborn, G. P. Dyer, R. H. Hamilton, F. Matthews, N. B. Sanborn, F. C. Stade, L. L. Colored Men Raising Money Under False Pretenses.

T. B. Morton, president of the Afro-American League, San Francisco, writes The Times, saying he has learned that C. A. Lucas and A. D. Griffin, two colored men of good address, have been traveling through the State, ostensibly raising meney for the Afro-American Republican leagues of California, and especially for the San Francisco league, but all the while putting it in their pockets. The reason given by the two men for soliciting subscriptions was to defray campaign expenses of the last State election.

Mr. Morton desires to make known through The Times that these men have no authority from the leagues, or any of its officers, to collect a dollar for that of any other purpose, and that no min, black or white, has been commissioned by him, or any of the leagues, to solicit money with which to cancel campaign or other indebtedness. He says the men are frauds, and describes their appearance as follows: Lucas, mulatto, about 25 years old, 5 feet high, medium size, well cressed and usually wears a slouch hat. Griffin is darker in color than Lucas, 27 years old, 5 feet 4 inches high, olean shaved, full face, quite stout, dresses neatly, and wears a silk hat. He further zays they are the same two men who, several months before the last State election, published a sheet called the Graphic, in this city, Los Angeles, and who, after having collected a snug sum from political candidates, discontinued the publication of the paper and fied to pastures new.

Mr. Morton adds he has learned that these two men have returned to Los Angeles and are probably at work again at their old tricks. If so, he expresses the hope that the police will take care of them.

THE CHURCH TANGLE.

ment of the Case from One Who Knows.

LOS ANGELES, April 12.—(To the Editor of The Times.) The reports of the proceedings of the Los Angeles Presbytery in regard to the cass of the First Presbyterian Church of Los Angeles, owing to their incompleteness give a wrong impression as to what was really done in this important case. Knowing that there are thousands of your readers who are anxious to learn just what was done, I send you this statement.

In order to give a clear idea of this whole matter, I will go back to the congregational meeting, which ratified the sale of the church property, Second and Broadway. After the action of the trustees, selling the property for $56,000, had been condrmed, the motion was made and carried to appoint an additional committee to act with the trustees in the purchase of a lot for the new church. The trustees were authorized to select this additional committee to oc-operate with them. A committee to co-operate with them. A motion was then made to limit the territory is which said tot should be purchased. In the north by Temple, on the south by Eight street. This was at one objected to by a prominent member of the committee, who stated (as you have already published) that "this money was the Lord's work, and would not the people trust them to do it?" Furthermore, if the location wherein the people desired the clurch should be made public, it would work against the committee in their purchasing, as owners of lots, knowing the committee had to purchase within a certain territory, would, perhaps, ask more for their property. For these reasons, and at the request of this member of the committee, they were given unlimited power to purchase. They proceeded to buy a lot on the west side of Figueron street, near Twenty-first, and on the Sabbath following this purchase the secretary of the committee announced to the congregation that the committee had discharged the duty imposed upon it, and had purchased the lot, as above stated. Immediately thereafter the people began to object, nearly three hundred of the First Church signing a protest, and a unanimous and vigorous protest also came from the Third Presbyterian Church located at the convey ance of the lot by Mr. Kerckhoff, who had purchased it, he offering the trustees 1000 for their equity in it, which up to date has cost them $100. This they refused to take, and in the name of the First Presbyterian Church entered a suit 'for damages for not conveying the lot, which suit is now pheinding in court.

Notwithstanding the protests of so many people and of the entire Third Church, and of the further fact that the committee had announced to the congregation that its duty was discharged, thereby discharging themselves, they immediately proceeded to purchase another lot on Figueros arrest, should opposite their first purchase. Soon after followed the annual meeting, at which a good dead of controversy and many personalities were industry and the entire to t

The Presbytery then adopted the report of the committee, recommending that the First Church and Third Church people meet and consult and arrange this matter in an amicable and Christian like manner. It will be seen by this statement that the committee and the entire Presbytery agreed with the protestants, First and Third churches, that the church ought not to have been moved there, and if it was, the people of the First Church remaining ought to have their share of, the money, but when it came to the matter of the Presbytery's taking positive action to compet the officials of the First Church so to do, and thereby undoubtedly enter into ditigation over the matter, the motion, was lost by one vote, as above hoted.

The protestants have the sympathy of almost the entire Presbytery, as well as the Presbyterians in the city, in this matter, and a compulsory measure was only lost by many who did not desire to see any legal proceedings instituted.

light, and the light is the life of men."

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

This church was very beautifully and tastefully decorated for Easter services. Some extra Easter music was delightfully rendered by the choir, Prof. Richeobach, and Mrs. Sherwood. Rev. A. C. Smither tegan his sermon by an explanation of the origin of Easter, tracing it back to the second century of the Christion era, and calling attention to the fact that it emphasized the resurrection of Christ, that great fundamental event in the life of Christ. After these explanatory statements with reference to Easter, the speaker discoursed upon Revelations i,18: "I am He that liveth and was dead; I am He that liveth forevermore, and have the keys of hell and death." Herein are found four periods in the life of Christ. All have reference here to the pre-existence of Christ; His life before His experience on earth. Next comes His earthly life, His experience among men. He is then said to live forevermore, all restrictions of time and sense are removed. By virtue of His experience among men He has secured the keys of hell and death, power over the grave and death. What a wonderful life was His!

The life of Christ is the spiritual experience among men and death, power over the grave and death. What a wonderful life was His!

The life of Christ is the spiritual experience with Him and walk in newness of life, and the true child of God liveth Christ, arise with Him and walk in newness of life, and the true child of God liveth forevermore, for to him is given by Christ the power over hell and death. Esternal life begins held as a forest the power of the Christian.

Baster, then, in the person of Christ and in the experience of the Christian.

Christian.

Easter, then, in the person of Christ and in the experience of the Ohristian brings a threefold message. It emphasizes, excentuates the somable of Christ. By the rescurrence of the control of God. Concede the resurrection of Christ and we are forced to accept the sonable of Jesus. With this comes the firm assurance of all the truths connected with the system of Christianty. The world condains no gladder message than the souship of Christ.

Easter brings the message of the imtains no gladder message than the souship of Christ.

Easter brings the message of the firm mortality of the souls of men. "Because I live you shall live also," said Christ, and by virtue of our union with Him we have eternal life. All restrictions of earth life are removed, and throughout the ceaseless cycles of etsentty men live on forever. This is made possible only by the resurrection of Christ.

Following upon these thoughts come that of the wider vision of life, made possible by the teaching of Christ. Life's plans and purposes are wider in their scope and accomplishment than the limit of seventy years. For the fulfillment of the purposes of God with reference to the race, the eternal ages of the future have been prepared. In this thought is found much consolation and comfort.

The gespel meeting at No. 107 North Spring street was well attended. It was the occasion of a most interesting talk by Mrs. John Nevius, a lady who has labored in the mission field in China for forty years. After prayer by Miss Warren and the singing of "Glorying in the Cross." Mrs. Navius. was introduced by Mrs. Z. D. Mathuss. She spoke of the home that had been hers so long in a strange land and told of the many curious modes of life among the Chinese, reminding her hearers of the brightness of their lives in the land that is redient with a hope in Christ, while the people of China had nothing better than the poor hope taught by Buddhism. In China it is bad to be born a woman, and many little girls die from neglect, and then to those who do not comes the inevitable binding of their feet. This custom it is not possible to trace to a beginning, so long has it been practiced. It is extremely painful and merciless, but must be obeyed.

Then Mrs. Nevius explained how helpless and unhappy was the home life of the women—mere drudges in their husbands' houses without love or gratitude to cheer them and doing the most mental tasks; how the women are left without education, bocause it is thought that education would unfit them for their hard duties.

In reply to the question asked the speaker as to what were their good points, Mrs. Nevius said they were hard working people, and patient and kind-hearted. There are between three and four hundred million inhabitants of China, and among them 60,000 or 70,000 Christians. By God's power it is hoped that the next firty years will show a great advance in this work. English is not taught in the mission schools—the teachers learn the Chinese language. The converted women make good Christians, being faithful and prayerful.

Mrs. Nevius, by request, described the labors of her husband, telling of five years

Mrs. Nevius, by request, described the labors of her husband, telling of five years sults, but when he was called home he had the joy of leaving sixty established churches or stations.

The speaker will return to China and give the rest of her life to the Master's service there.

Prayer was offered by Miss Morse and he Christian Endeavor benediction closed the service.

Extra lunches will be served during this week to members and friends of the assorelation.

The Friday musicales at noontime are very popular, at the last one a beautiful programme being rendered by Miss Jessie Goodwin and her brothers.

Lunar Rainbows.

Lunar Rainbows.

ESCONDIDO, April 11.—(Special Correspondence.) In your issue of April 6 are several accounts of lunar rainbows. None of the writers describe their appearance or mention having seen any that were double. On March 15, at Valle las Palmas, in Lower California, I saw one about 3 o'clock in the morning. This was rather indistinct, owing, no doubt, to the moon being on the wane. On January 10 of the present year the moon being full we were treated to one of the grandest sights I ever beheld; it was a lunar rainbow and was first noted about 8 o'clock p.m. It was double and very bright, the second circle was very distinct, the colors were more blended than in a rainbow caused by the sun, and over all there seemed to be a greenish shade; the circles were also narrow and closer together than in a rainbow caused by the sun.

The municipal business now before it will probably be cleared up by the City Council today, preparatory to the over

The Maginnis special privilege, the granting of which has been the bone of contention for three or four weeks past, is to be again presented to the Council.

The City Attorney has been directed to present an ordinance granting the privilege, and the matter is today to come up in that form.

Bids are to be received for a site for the new city fall and police station. The site is to be within one-half mile of Second and Spring streets, and is to contain not less than 15,000 square feet.

The Board of Public Works will recommend the acceptance, under certain conditions, of the bid of O. A. Ivers for the franchise for a street railway on West First street, between Bonnie Brae street and the west city Emits.

Instructions have been issued to the City Engineer to present an ordinance of intention for the construction of a sewer on Main street, east of the river. This sewer, it will be remembered, is the one against which objection was raised, but which was recommended as a sanitary

A roof garden will be one of the features. The house will be first-class in every respect, and run on the European plan. The company having the scheme in contemplation is very wealthy, and has valuable property in nearly every large city in the Western States.

It is also stated on good authority that Mr. Stein, a wealthy brewer now sojourning at the Hotel Redondo, who has about $5,000,000 invested in the brewing business at Chicago and Oweneboro, Ky., is contemplating the erection of a $2,000,000 brewery in Los Angeles. In fact, negotiations for a site for the plant have been in progress for some time, and if a suitable location can be procured the big brewery will be built. able location can be procured the big brew-ery will be built.

There were 130 people in the party, and all are greatly enjoying their trip. The general public has little idea of the San Francisco.

The general public has little idea of the duties and responsibilities of the car accountant when he is in his office, but he it is who keeps track of all the wandering rolling stock of the company employing him, and also of cars of other companies which run over his line. The system of keeping accounts of the car interchanges is quite intricate, and with the prodigious number of cars now in use, has grown to great proportions. The car accountants do not junket so far from home, and this party, which includes representatives from all over the East, is quit for a joily good time.

VISITING SAN PEDRO.

A special train carried a distinguished party to San Pedro Saturday at 11 a.m. over the Terminal road. The passenger list included Hon. R. C. Kerens of St. Louis. Hon. James McLachian, W. C. Patterson, president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce; General Manager T. B. Burnett, Col. H. G. Otis, William Wincup, Judge S. O. Houghton, Gen. Forman, Gen. E. Bouton, Mr. Dodd of St. Louis; the Misses Kerens, the Misses Burnett and others. Upon arrival at East San Pedro the party boarded a tug and made a cruise about both the inner and the outer harbors, inspecting what is to be the great seaport of Southern California. Upon returning to shore a fish dinner was discussed at the cafe, after which the party came back to the city, arriving at 5 p.m.

THE MAIN-STREET ROAD.

THE MAIN-STREET ROAD. The promoters of the Main-street railway enterprise say that, after two days' so-licitation as much as $2000 has been promenterprise sy that, as $2000 has been promised toward the subsidy necessary to bring about the transfer of the property to the prospective purchasers and its reconstruction to a modern electric road. This proposition, as has been explained, is to secure a subsidy of $1 a front foot from property-owners along the line. This would bring in about $50,000, but the promoters of the enterprise do not expect to get much more than $30,000, which sum would be acceptable. If the property-owners contribute the bonus the horse line will be quickly transformed into an electric road, an improvement all would appreciate.

WELL-EARNED PROMOTION. WELL-EARNED PROMOTION.

The following circular, issued yesterday from the office of the division superintendent of the Southern Pacific, was re-ceived with a greater amount of favor than many business documents meet with:

(Circular No. 421.)
LOS ANGELES, April 13, 1895.—All concerned, Los Angeles division: F. E. Prior is hereby appointed assistant division superintendent of the Los Angeles division, taking effect April 15, 1895. All orders given by him will be respected accordingly.

(Signed) J. A. MUIR, Div. Supt. Approved: J. A. FILLMORE, Gen. Supt. Mr. Prior is a general favorite with the train crews of the Southern Pacific, as well as that portion of the outside public with whom he is brought into business contact. In being thus promoted he receives the good wishes of every employee.

THE QUEEN TO ARRIVE. The Southern Pacific people have decided to run special fiesta trains from all local terminals on next Wednesday and Saturday nights, the 17th and 20th, these being the nights of the principal entertainments of the flesta, and the time when people will be most likely to want to remain in town. Should, however, any considerable number of people want to be here any other evening specials will be run on such nights also, provided, a party of forty or fifty people will join in.

The Queen of the Fiesta will arrive at the Arcade Depot on her special royal train about 1 p.m. Tuesday.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

Dirty Linen.

LOS ANGELES, April 10 .- (To the Editor of The Times:) Fair play is a word which should find an echo in every human neart; that it does not is obvious and like wise regrettable.

A very scandalous lawsuit in London just immersed in an unutterable mire an English author who, in his writings, has made it his pastime to taunt the Phil-istine. The Philistine is now tasting the sweets of revenge, and Oscar Wilde is nailed to the pillory of—what shall we cal it?—righteous indignation or revolted pub

His crime, if he be criminal, is one which in polite circles is labeled indecent; the most lenient critic would certainly call it unaesthetic. But here the philosophical but asserts itself—who is the most blamable of the two, Oscar Wilder, archance an unconscious erotomaniae, and the companies of the companies perchance an unconscious erotomaniac, or the Marquis of Queensberry of prize-ring fame, who drags his son into the nauseat-ing cesspool wherein he would fain drown the author of the "Picture of Dorian Grey?"

the author of the "Picture of Dorian Grey?"
Oscar Wilde may be a doomed man; but what is the future reserved, through the sottish interference of his father, to the youthful Lord Alfred Douglass?
To put the question is to answer it. We have here once again the proof that misguided zeal is worse than apathetic indifference. The mantle of charity covers a multitude of sins; and were it ever more necessary than in this sad case?
The French are right: "If aut laver son impe sale en famille." To return to Oscar wilde, he possessos in a high degree the go-manta of decadentism; its love of the artificial, its aversion to nature and all furm of activity and movement, its prediction for disbolism, Sadism and unnatural deprayity, its megalomaniacal contempt for man and its exaggeration of the importance of art.

The literary efforts may be classed under three headlings: Proce, poems and plays. His poems are in the style of the pre-Raphaelites, but are rather feeble imitations of Swinburne and Roscetti, and of dreary in anity. His proce works, on the contrary, are worthy of attention: "Intentions," "The Picture of Dorian Gray," "Lord Arthur Saville's Crime," are very clever paradoxes, but that a paradox may become a reality Oscar Wilde seems to have victoriously proven by taking on himself the part of Dorian Gray. The "Happy Prince" and a "House of Pomegranates" are very pretty fairy takes. His dramatic works comprise: "Lady Windermere's Fan," "A Woman of no Importance," "The Duchess of Padua," "Salome," and "A Model Husband."

As a playwright, Oscar Wilde has been

Model Husband."

As a playwright, Oscar Wilde has been very successful; his pieces are the triumph of the epigram, and it must be conceded that he often uses this incisive weapon with great effect.

But alongs de of his literary efforts, even perhams overtogening than Wilde's nor perhaps overtowering them, Wilde's per-sonal eccentricities have held the public in suspense, wondering what his next move would be.

He is fond of dressing in queer costumes which recall partly the fashions of the middle ages, partly the Roccoo modes. He pretends to have given up the of the middle ages, partly the Rococo modes. He pretends to have given up the dress of the present time because it offends his sense of the beautiful; but this sonly a pretext in which probably he himself does not believe; for when not posing I understand that he is rather inclined to be alovenly and to give the beautiful the "grand bounce," so far as his vestments are concerned. What really determines his actions is the hysterical craving to be noticed, to occupy the attention of the world with himself, to get talked about. This craving must be more than amply satisfied just at present, in which moment he is for the first time in his life unwillingty the cynosure of all eyes. It is a well-known fact that he once walked down Pall Mall in the afternoon dressed in doublewand breeches with a picturesque biretta on his head and a sunflower in his hand, the quasi-heraldic symbol of the Aesthetes.

Oscar Wilde affects a superb disdain for nature, and says of her in his book "Intentions:" "Whatever actually occurs is spoiled for art. All bad poetry springs from servine feeling. The head and is for the partural is for "intentions:" "Whatever actually occurs is spoiled for art. All bad poetry springs from genuine feeling. To be natural is to be obvious, and to be obvious is to be inartistic."

be obvious, and to be obvious is to be inartistic."

He is a "cultivator of the ego," and feels deliciously indignant at the fact that nature dares to be indifferent to the charms of his person. He writes: "Nature is so indifferent, so unappreciative.
Whenever I am walking in the park here,
I always feels that I am no more to her
than the cattle that browse on the slope."

With regard to himself and the human species, he says: "Ah, don't say that you agree with me. When people agree with me I always feel that I must be wrong."

These citations could be multiplied ad infinitum, but I shall close these lines with a poem by Oscar Wide. It is rather appripriate:
"To stab my youth with desperate knives,

To stab my youth with desperate knives to wear
This pairry age's gaudy livery,
To let each base hand filch my treasury,
To mesh my soul within a woman's hair,
And be mere Fortune's lackeyed groom, I

Than the thin foam that frets upon the sea, Less than the thietle down of summer sir. Which hath no seed; better to stand aloft Far from these slanderous fools who mock Knowing me not, better the lowliest roof Fit for the meanest hind to sojourn in, Than to go back to that hoarse cave of Where my white soul first kissed the mouth of sin."

At the Universalist Church the decorations were exceedingly beautiful, consisting of arrangements of white littles, roses and purple wisteria in mass. The Methodist Church was decked with white littles about the altar and chancel. The musical services at both of these churches were the best ever given upon Baster day. At the Friends' Church Miss Myrtle Buifen sang a solo, and the pastor, C. E. Tebbets, preached a sermon upon "The Resurraction," declaring it the mightlest of the world's miracles. A HOME WEDDING.

An Infernal Machine That Injured

SANTA MONICA, April 14.—(Special forrespondence.) Maximilian Arce, a lark-hued native son, who has a pre-umptive claim in the mountains back of the Malibu ranch, about fourteen from town, was in Santa Monica today displayin an ingenious infernal machine from whose deadly discharge its possessor barely escaped. It seems that an American, whose name Arce failed to get, has been stopping with him for the past two months, and recently went away. He left a peculiar-looking contrivance like a short section of square wooden pipe about two feet long. It had a partition which anort section or square wooden pipe about two feet long. It had a partition which made one barrel about an inch and a half by two inches, and the other just large enough to admit a lath. In this smaller barrel a lath was thrust, which protruded a foot or more. Growing curious about the thing Aree took hold of the lath to pull it out. Not liking the sound of the first movement of the lath, Acre pushed the muzzle of the thing away from him, just in time to have daylight let through the roof of his cabin instead of through the top of his head. The larger barrel had been carefully charged with powder and rock, and parlor matches had been so arranged that when the lath, upon the end of which sandpaper had been fastened, was pulled out it would ignite the matches. The rest would follow naturally, and if the first match had not "barked" before it flashed, the man whose curiosity led him to draw out the lath, would never have lived to tell the tale. The inventor of the death trap has disappeared.

EASTER DAY SERVICES AT THE SANTA ANA CHURCHES

How Paving Matters Stand-Light Fall of Rain - Favorable Reports of Crop Conditions. Other News.

SANTIA ANA, April 14.—(Special Correspondence.) Services appropriate to Easter day were held in all, or nearly all, the churches of Santa Ana, prominence being given in most cases to floral decorations and special musical features. But the crowning event of the day here was the grand Sunday-school raily in the afternoon, at Spurgeon's Operahouse, in which all the Sunday-schools of the city were represented. The meeting at the hall was preceded by an impressive march through the principal streets of the city. After arriving at the hall, which was soon overcrowded, the audience was called to order by Rev. J. T. Hopkins, who presided during the services. Pastors of the different churches occupied seats on the platform, beside Rev. E. S. Chapman, D.D., of Oakland, the speaker of the occasion. The whole affair passed off very pleasantly and successfully, and will keep the memory of Easter day, 1895, in the hearts of many boys and girls in Santa Ana for a long time.

THE PAVING STATUS. THE PAVING STATUS.

Considerable inquiry is being made as to where operations will commence on paying the two blocks from Main to Spurto where operations will commence on paving the two blocks from Main to Spurgeon streets. It is possible that most of our citizens do not understand the conditions under which the matter rests, which are as follows: In the first place, a petition was sent in by the property-owners of porphyry macadam, and was granted by the Board of Trustees, and that style of pavement was ordered down. Subsequently, however, and just before the expiration of the limit under which a change could be made, a second petition was presented, asking for asphaltum, instead of porphyry, which was also granted and the former action rescinded, but instead of indorsing the plans and specifications now being used in the construction of the pavement from Main to West streets, which call for a four-inch concrete foundation and two-foot grantic guiters, the east-end property-owners asked for a cix-inch foundation and three-foot guiters. This, of course, will necessitate new plans and specifications, which must be acted upon before operations can commence. There is some variance between the interested parties, also, as to the manner of awarding the work. John McFadden and a number of other leading movers in the project desire that a committee be appointed to receive bids, and that the contract be awarded privately, as, under a and a number of other leading movers in the project desire that a committee be appointed to receive bids, and that the contract be awarded privately, as, under a private contract, the parties securing the work would be compelled to furnish $2500 guarantee bonds for each block, covering a period of five years, while under a public contract no such guarantee would be necessary. Three property-holders, however, are holding out for public bids, and just how the matter will terminate cannot be saffely predicted at present. One thing is sure enough, and that is that the work will be done.

HOW THE PROPLE FEEL. The public improvements that are going on in Santa Ana are resulting in establishing a general good feeling among the business men and every one seems to be imbued with the idea that it pays to keep his property in good condition and to see that one's neighbors do the same thing. A press representative interviewed a number of citizens vesteries and they were that one's neighbors do the same thing. A press representative interviewed a number of citizens yesterday and they were unanimous in the expression that Santa Ana never was in a more prosperous condition than it is at the present time, and that the many new business firms that have been established in the city during the past month or so may rightly be considered a direct result of the manifestations of public spirit that are being made by the residents in so many of the public enterprises that have recently been started.

At least one more block of asphaltum pavement will be put down on the west end of Fourth street. Charles Jacobson end of Fourth street. Charles Jacobson informed the Times' correspondent today that Mr. Gildmacher, who owns over half of the frontage on Fourth street between West and Birch streets, will arrive from San Francisco next week and will immediately take steps to have that block payed. Out of the 500 feet frontage Mr. Gildmacher has 317 feet, so there is no doubt but the City Trustees will, upon Mr. Gildmacher's consent, order the payement down.

Now that the West End comes to the front with another block of the asphaltum pavement, it remains for the East End to match them, at least, if it does not go them one better. The public is anxiously waiting for the East End to speak.

Santa Ana may yet be the best-paved city of its size in all California. BREVITIES.

It is expected that the process of laying the asphalt on the two blocks from Main to West streets will commence tomorrow (Monday) morning, and be completed by Saturday night.

A refreshing shower fell here last night,

Reports of unusually good crop conditions from all over the county are coming in. Considerable barley hay has already been cut, and the first crop of many of the alfalfa fields is ready for delivery. All growing products are looking fine and the outlook for Orange county was never more favorable.

A. R. Rowley is ill with diphtheria. His daughter, Gracie, has been a victim of the same disease, and it is feared that his little son, Burton, may be attacked, as he has not been well the past few days. There are some other cases in the southeast part of town, and too much care cannot be taken to prevent a spread of the disease.

Santa Ana people can enjoy the evening attractions during flests, as the Santa Fe will, on April 17, 18, 19 and 20, run a special train to Santa Ana, leaving Los Angeles at 11 p.m. on these dates.

SAN BERNARDINO COUNTY. CHAMBER OF COMMERCE EXHI-BIT TO BE DISCONTINUED.

Application for the Positions of City Clerk and Street Superinten-dent—Easter Sunday Seryices-Local News

SAN BERNARDINO, April 14.—(Special Correspondence.) At the meeting of the board of directors of the Chamber of Com-Correspondence.) At the meeting of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday afternoon, it was decided to give up the rooms now occupied in the Stewart Hotel block and discontinua the exhibit, which has been maintained for the past four months. Exhibitors have been notified of the decision, and it is expected that all articles will be removed by the 20th inst. The exhibit is a very fine one and has attracted much attention, and the register shows that over, five thousand people have inspected it. The reason for its discontinuance is want of funds. All bills were paid up to March 1, but there is pow an indebteness of $165. To offset this there are the membership dues for April, which have not been collected. This failure to support the chamber and the exhibit by the businessmen of the city is another one of the results of the general Sunday-closing law, and the fight for its repeal. The management is upopopular because of its connection with the effort to keep the ordinance on the statute book. H. M. Barton, president of the Chamber of Commerce, as City Trustee, voted for the obnoxious law, and voted to deny the petition of the business men for its repeal. Secretary S. L. Grow was an active member of the Clitzens' Union. The member of the Clitzens' Union. The member of the Clitzens' Union. REDLANDS, April 14.—(Special Correspondence.) About 6 o'clock Saturday night a gasoline oil stove over Dow's laundry caught fire. The alarm was given and in a few minutes the fire company was on the scene, but in the meantime the stove had been hurled to the ground and the fire extinguished, and their services were not needed.

Hardly fifteen minutes had passed when another alarm was given, and it was found that the Cricket office in the Shepard Holes was abaze. Mr. Watson was locked. How the fire originated is a mystery, but it apparently started in a tox or feruse paper. The application of a few pails of water by neighbors put out the flames, and this undoubtedly averted a no small configgration. Mr. Watson estimates his damage at $50; no insurance. Months ago the fountain for the triangle arrived, and the reason why it has not been put in place is because of the epited condition of the city treasury.

News comes from Congress of a rich

Reports from the King Solomon district, ten miles east of Eldorado, Ariz., are to the effect that the veins lately uncovered there indicate a low grade of porphyry and iron formation, showing, by assays, from $2 to $15 per ton in gold. Some are of the opinion that the ore, of which, as reported, there is an immense quantity, can be milled in the mountains, while others contend it will have to be brought to the river. Franconia, on the Atlantic and Pacific, is the nearest station, being about seven miles from the district.

Prescott and Bogan, says the Nogales Oasis, are pushing work on the Sorreltop mine in the Oro Blanco district. They are now down 130 feet, and are cross-cutting the ledge. After making the cross-cut they will sink 100 feet further. The present working is in good free-gold ore.

It is reported that L. P. Drexler has bought a large tract of copper deposit in this Territory (Arizona,) close to the United Verde mines.

The Yuma Times says that John Llewellyn and C. J. Kimball have disposed of a bond on the Old Desert mine to James Wakeman of Connecticut, retaining a one-third interest in the property. They bonded the mine three months ago. The Old Desert mine lies about eight miles north of the Bonanza. It was located about twelve years ago, and a great deal of work has been done on it since. There is said to be now not less than two hundred thousand tons of ore in sight. The ore is partly free-milling and partly concentrating. A mill is to be erected at once and enough power has been arranged to run a hundred-stamp mill.

Work will soon commence on the erection of additional machinery at the Mammoth mine, Tombstone district. When completed the mill will have a capacity of 300 tons per day.

The Jerome Chronicle reports that three feet of sulphuret ore has been struck in the Green Monster claim, south of Jerome, and one of the group in which the gold strike was reported lately. The sulphuret strike was made in cross-cutting the vein. Fourteen feet of carbonate ore was encountered and crossed before the sulphuret ore was met. The ore is said to resemble that of the United Verde Copper Company's mines.

The Venezia Mining Company, at Crook Canyon, have just put in a new boiler to run their mill and other machinery connected with the mine. The boiler weighs over five tons, and is the largest ever sent to that section.

Under a law passed by the last Arizona Legislature a heavy penalty is attached to "The latest reliable information," says the Banning Herald, "in regard to the Desert Queen mine is to the effect that the seven tone of ore which have been milled yielded ninety-seven ounces of gold, which at $17 per ounce amounts to near $1700. This is an average of $240 per ton." James McHenry, of this mine, lately sent out a five-stamp mill. He reports the ledge in the Desert Queen a large one. It is said that Expert Blaisdell, who has examined the ledge several times, made a flat offer of $150,000 for the right to work it.

At the Good Hope mine, in this county, At the Good Hope mine, in this county, fifty-three men are reported at work, and the output averages about fifty tons of ore daily. The Santa Rosa mine, six miles distant, has a 320-foot shaft and about 1440 feet of drifts. A ten-stamp mill is at work, bandling about twenty-five tons of $20-ore daily. The Santa Fe, close to the Santa Rosa, is being reworked by Superintendent Stover, with good indications. There are about forty other claims in the vicinity in which considerable developing work is being done.

VANDERBILT DISTRICT.

The reports from Vanderbilt district are very encouraging. The Gold Bronze mine is in good-shape. On the 250-foot level there is 200 feet of ore in sight which runs up to the 150-foot level, the intervening distance being nearly a solid block of ore. There is also good ore being stoped out of the 150-foot level. A carload of concentrates was lately shipped from this mine to Pueblo. These concentrates are valued at about 360 to the ton. At present there are twenty-three men at work.

At the Chippy mine they are taking out ore valued at 350 to the ton.

Robert Patterson has bought the two-thirds interest of Alva Phelps in the Phelps mine at Crescent. He has put some men at work on it, and if developments warrant it, a mill will be set up.

The rush to Montgomery has been too great and men are returning, saying there are already too many there for what is in sight. When the now mill there is completed more then will be required.

The Buck Consolidated mill at Vanderbilt is running day and night on ore from the Boomerang mine.

The Vootrigger mine, in the Vandervbilt district, promises well. Good ore has been struck at the 100-foot level. About four miles from the Vontrigger a new strike has been made and which is reported to be rich.

NEW DRY-WASHER.

A New Mexico man has patented, says the Nogales Vidette, a dry-washer which promises to revolutionize the placering business. It is a machine designed to save all the gold, both flour and nuggets, in the sand without the use of water and quicksilver. It consists of a sand-roaster discharging into a nugget separating machine leading to conveyors connected by elevators with the uppermost of a series of screens one above the other, each having rifflies to retain the gold and an outlet for the tailings. The screen are graduated, and each has a hopper discharging into the next lower screen. The machine is rune by a team attached to sweeps.

Canyon, Orange county, Cal., is being reopened. New machinery for it has lately been purchased in San Francisco. A ditch is being constructed along the north side of the canyon, where, in a distance of half a mile, 124 feet fall can be obtained. The water will be utilized as power and will operate the machinery by means of a Pelton water wheel. The ore is said to contain both gold and silver in paying quantities.

A rich mineral paint deposit is reported near Abilene, Tex. The earth is dark cherry in color and requires no grinding. The new raise in Con. Virginia, says the Virginia (Nev.) Chronicle, is said to be looking fine and that there is a streak of ore in it going as high as $1000 per ton. Men are working night and day on the shaft of the Santa Fe mine, near Perris, Riverside county, and expect at about eighty feet to strike the 700-foot tunnel. The shaft is being sunk at the rate of four feet a day.

Probably Got the Right Stuff.

(Chicago Tribune:) "You have a bad cold, young man," said the clergyman to the reporter, as the two met in the elevator. "If you don't take something for it you'll have a case of pneumonia on your hands."

"What would you recommend?" wheezed the young man.

"Well," answered the other, "you'll want to get some quinine. Don't forget the quinine. Then," he continued reflectively, "you must mix it with something. As a minister I cannot, of course, advise the use of any impious beverage, but I've no doubt you'll get the right stuff," and you want to take lots of it, young man, take lots of it!"

TOOK MORPHINE.

Lizzie Carroll Suicides Under Mysterious Circumstances.

J. E. Stickler and Charles Sangster are two young men who have been occupying room 39, McDonald Block, for a month past, but they did not sleep there last night. Both were out during the evening, and when Stickler returned to the room about 10 o'clock, he discovered a young woman lying on a sofa. Her hat and wrap were on the bed.

The woman's heavy breathing soon convinced the young man that something was wrong. On a stand by her side was a large bottle of morphine. It flashed through Stickler's mind at once that she had taken a dose of the drug. He lost no time in summoning Dr. H. Nadeau, who rooms on the floor below.

Dr. Nadeau made an examination and were on the bed.

Sangster had by this time also appeared, but both he and Stickler professed never to have seen the woman before, and neither could account for her presence in the room. The door was locked when they went out, and when Stickler returned it was open and a key was in the door. There was two keys and he had the other in his pocket. Sangster did not explain how she came in possession of his key.

The two men acted in a mysterious manner and refused to give their names to the reporters or the police. They said they were afraid to sleep in the room and went elsewhere to find lodgings. Detective Goodman, however, searched the room and ascertained from papers in their trunks that their names are as stated above.

There was nothing by which to identify the woman. Detective Goodman, however, at a late hour, ascertained that her name was Lizzie Carroll, and that she was a servant girl for a family named Church living at No. 136 West Pico street.

Sangster finally admitted that he knew the girl and that she had been in his room Saturday night till about 9:30 o'clock. At 2 o'clock this morning she was still alive, but was expected to die any moment.

The two rolling-mill men aiready referred to had been watching King and when they observed that he was about to "graft" his companion, they hurried to the police station and reported the circumstance. James Boland, a rancher, killed by being run over by a Southern Pacific train, near that place, Saturday night. He zwore in a jury, who viewed the remains, but the inquest was postponed till the trainmen could be present.

Boland was killed within a short distance of his home, but how he came to be on the railroad track and in the way of the train has not yet been explained. His right leg was cut off at the groin and his right hand at the wrist. No other marks were found on his body, which makes it plain that he was not struck by the train, but must have been lying down beside the track, with his eleg and arm protruding over the rail.
